MITCHELL ON TRIAL FOR TAX EVASION

Today

What of U. S. Workmen? Harvard's New President. More Work, Better Times. Changes Come Slowly.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

WASHINGTON, May 11.

GREAT BRITAIN "gives approval to the tariff armistice." The assumption is that United States tariffs are to be lowered and everybody made happy "by ending economic warfare among nations."

Ending economic warfare sounds pleasant. But what about the international differences in wages and manufacturing costs and different standards of living?

TEARING DOWN tariff walls to obligate foreign workmen and manufacturers that need our markets, and at the same time "revising the war debts" to oblige nations that borrowed from us, would be pleasant for foreigners, less pleasant for Americans.

This country feels that a good worker is entitled to a decent home, automobile, education for his children, radio, bathtub and reasonable leisure.

HE CANNOT have that if he must compete in wages with Asiatics or the Europeans getting twenty-five cents to one dollar a day. Americans should buy from American workers, spend the money in the United States, where they get it.

He who advocates bringing down the tariff, to put American workers on a par with twenty-five cent workers in Asia or one dollar workers in Europe, is not a friend of the United States, its prosperity or its working people.

RAY BRENNAN, of the Associated Press, gives encouraging instances of jobs and wages increasing.

Going north, through Virginia, you learn that the Planters Nut and Chocolate Company, of Suffolk, announces wage increases of twenty per cent.

At Commerce, Ga., the National Manufacturing Company calls several hundred men back to work and begins operating mills day and night.

HARVARD UNIVERSITY shows wisdom in selecting for president, as successor to its distinguished President Lowell, one of the university's faculty, Prof. James Bryant Conant.

The new president of Harvard has taught organic chemistry, which means that he has chosen a modern subject, calling for a mind willing to accept new facts and ideas.

Prof. Conant, one of the youngest of Harvard's presidents, is only 40, old enough to inspire respect in the students, young enough to understand their mental processes and sympathize with their mistakes as well as their ambitions.

Prof. Conant's photograph shows strong character and a sense of humor that will help him to deal with young gentlemen whose present conceit is sometimes an excellent sign, since conceit in youth is often a prelude to real ambition realized later.

Ronsard, Shakespeare and many others knew that mention by them conferred immortality. Newton and Napoleon when young had no doubt of their own great powers. Don't be hard on youth for vanity. Direct it.

MR. OWEN D. YOUNG and Mr. Gerard Swope, who have worked hard during the depression on the problem of providing new jobs and arranging to make existing jobs go as far as possible, have done better than merely "divide jobs" in connection with General Electric, which they manage.

Mr. Walter J. Daily, of General Electric's refrigerating department, announces:

"All General Electric plants manufacturing refrigerators are running on twenty-four hour basis. Shipments of refrigerators have reached 100 full cars daily. The number of factory employes has been doubled since January 1, and increased by forty per cent since the end of the bank holiday."

IT IS also announced that the demand for factory products is in excess of capacity to produce.

Regardless of that pleasant condition, General Electric shows intelligence by beginning an intensive advertising campaign in daily newspapers, on the theory that when you have a good thing you should make the most of it.

General Motors, which produces "Frigidaire," and other manufacturers of electric refrigerators also furnish reports of increasing sales and employment.

The electric refrigerator, an "unsatisfactory experiment" only a little while ago, is now perfected. Enough current to supply one electric bulb will keep your electric icebox going.

CHANGES COME slowly, for human beings find it hard to abandon beliefs and customs drilled into them through centuries. Poor Gandhi, now starving himself, will pass like a shadow and India will remain what India has been for thousands of years.

Gandhi refuses to eat, this time to impress on his countrymen the wickedness of their class system, which establishes the caste of "untouchables," human beings whose very touch, presence and breath are offensive to the higher castes, poor creatures classed lower than animals.

YET GANDHI knows that two-thirds of his people would rather have restored to them the precious privilege of burning young widows alive with the dead bodies of their old husbands, and the other privilege of marrying little girls from 8 to 10 years of age to old men, than do away with the misery and injustice of the "untouchable" class.

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS was reminded the other day of

SWEATSHOP STRIKE WON, WAGES UP

Mrs. Pinchot's Answer To Martin

HARRISBURG, May 11. — Informed that Gen. Edward Martin had omitted from a prepared speech remarks about a "prominent Pennsylvania woman" being a "Red" for leading sweat shop picketers, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot said today:

"Poor Gen. Martin. I said last night that he was a man-afraid-of-his-own-shadow and incapable of leadership.

"I didn't know then that he was afraid of children in sweat shops.

ALLENTOWN, May 11.—(AP.)—Three hundred so called "child strikers" went back to work this afternoon in three Allentown garment factories as a result of ratification of an agreement between the manufacturers and representatives of the workers.

The workers still are picketing a fourth factory, but they also are expected to return to duty.

The girls and women, whose cause had been espoused by Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the Governor, cheered as they marched into the Feeser, Bernstein and Delphia mills after weeks of idleness.

Under the provision of the agreement, a minimum wage is established. Strikers said this meant an immediate increase in pay for the majority of the workers. The wage scale was not made public.

The agreement was reached with Mayor Fred Lewis, of Allentown, acting as arbitrator between the factory operators and the Amal-

BUCS, GIANTS MEET TODAY

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, May 11.—Despite the rain clouds which threatened to spoil the battle, the Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Giants loosened up this afternoon for their first clash of the season.

Heinie Meine and Carl Hubbell, two of the league's best pitchers, were set to oppose each other on the mound.

The Pittsburghers came to town to test the home team in a four-game series. They are due to return home after Sunday's contest.

Lindy Himself Kidnap Target, Means Testifies

GASTON B. MEANS

Names Communist As Baby Stealer, Maid as Spy

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP.)—Gaston B. Means, testifying in his own defense in a ransom conspiracy trial, said in District of Columbia Supreme Court today that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh himself, and not his first-born son who was later found slain, was the object of the kidnaper's plot.

He said they planned to hold him for a half million dollars ransom, but that the opportunity never came to carry out this purpose.

Violet Sharpe, maid in the household of the late Senator Dwight Morrow, kept the kidnapers informed of Lindbergh's movements, he testified.

GIRL ENDED LIFE

Miss Sharpe ended her life by poison while being questioned shortly after the Lindbergh baby's body was found.

Earlier, Means had asserted he knew the kidnapers of the Lindberg baby, how the child was killed an dwho got the $560,000 Dr. John F. Condon ("Jafsie") paid to ransom the infant.

Means, a former Justice Department agent, is on trial with Norman T. Whitaker on a charge of attempting to defraud Mrs.

JAP PLANE BOMBS U. S. HOSPITAL

Lone Nippon Airman In Raid on Peiping

By JOHN GOETTE
International News Service.

PEIPING, May 11.—Firing a machine gun fusillade at the Peiping military garrison, a Japanese bombing plane today brought the Sino-Japanese conflict to the heart of China.

Flying over Peiping at dawn, the enemy aircraft suddenly swooped down on the garrison building, loosing a hail of bullets against the headquarters of a detachment of Chinese troops.

Gen. Ho Ying-Ching, Chinese commandant, said the rain of lead inflicted no damage.

At the same time, another Japanese plane flew over Chichow, east of Peiping, and bombed a field hospital maintained by the Peking Union Medical College hospital, an adjunct of the Rockefeller foundation.

Five Chinese soldier patients were killed and several others were wounded.

The two surprise air attacks were launched as Japanese-Manchukuo troops pressed down from the north toward the Peiping-Tientsin area, menacing American and British lives and property in their rapid advance.

The plane which fired on the garrison here completely reconnoitered the city and its outskirts, leading observers to believe it was making observations preparatory to expected occupation of the area by Japanese forces, which have already subjugated the Lwan River district.

Except when it swooped down on the garrison, the plane maintained sufficient altitude to avoid Chinese ground fire, military officials said.

Then, after dropping leaflets, it headed north to the battle line between Miyun-Hsien, where American missionary property is again in danger of destruction, and Nentienmen.

'TATTLE DEATH' 3D DEGREE TOLD

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP.)—Harry Murch, school boy on trial in Queens County Court on a charge of murder in the "tattle" slaying of a 12-year-old playmate, charged from the witness stand today that a confession was wrung from him by third degree methods.

He accused Assistant District Attorney Charles F. Sullivan, who is trying to send him to the electric chair, and Detective Theodere Berger.

He said the alleged third degree was administered at Jamaica Police Station on February 15, the day on which the body of Willie Bender was found, bound, gagged and stabbed in the heart, in an unfinished house.

Young Murch's alleged confession of the killing of his playmate was introduced yesterday. It set forth as a motive that Harry was "mad at Mr. Bender," the slain boy's father.

The prosecution has charged that he committed the crime because he considered Willie a "tattler."

BANKER SEES BUSINESS GAINS

Reports 'Astonishing Spending,' More Work Here

Vital developments in Pittsburgh's march toward prosperity today were these:

1—Definite employment pickup and "astonishing" spending noted by banking leader.

2—Tin plate production at about 60 per cent in district.

4—Automobile sales for April 12 per cent ahead of last year.

As reports of increased activity came from every nook and corner of industrial and commercial life in the Pittsburgh district, A. C. Robinson, chairman of the board, Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company, viewed them as assurance the economic machine is about to function properly again. In a statement for the Sun-Telegraph, he said:

"There are evidences that much more money is moving into wages. The public is spending astonishingly. Trade in the stores is holding up since Easter better than anyone expected. People are buying the necessities without which they were going because of fear just before the bank holiday.

"It is a certain fact that there is more employment today than in some time past. People are feeling hopeful again. And with a little bit here and a little more there, the first thing we know, we'll have the whole thing started again."

Officials of the Allegheny Steel Company announced certain lines in their plant at Brackenridge were operating at 100 per cent of capacity, while others were running between 35 and 50 per cent of normal.

HEAVY BUYING LIFTS STOCKS

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP.)—Stocks and principal staples were swept up to new highs for the recovery on the crest of another huge buying wave today.

Trading in the share market hit the feverish pace of last week, with the ticker falling in arrears of transactions.

Extreme gains ranged from $1 to more than $5 a share in many issues.

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP.)—The fuel system of Frank Hawks' new long distance speed plane quit on him today as he was 3,000 feet above the towers of Manhattan, and his engine died.

Hawks glided downward across half the town and landed safely on the polo field on Governors' Island in the bay.

Wife Spurning 'In-Laws' Blocks Man's Divorce

A wife's refusal to live with her husband's parents does not constitute desertion, Judge S. J. Snee ruled today in refusing a divorce to James E. Ball, 1338 Lincoln avenue, from Mary F. Ball, 1301 Paulson avenue.

The testimony disclosed Ball had obtained a divorce in Reno, in 1927. Finding it was not valid in this state, he filed suit here recently, charging desertion. The wife contested. They were married in Wellsburg, W. Va., February 8, 1921.

Judge Snee said:

"She did not willfully desert her husband as she was willing to live with him. He had sufficient funds to acquire a separate apartment or residence away from his people. Her insistence upon living away from her husband's parents was not unreasonable."

A Dangerous Precedent

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S frank talks with American people are admirable and valuable as long as they are FRANK and adhere strictly to FACTS.

It is hardly frank, however, to declare and himself to decide that it is constitutional for the Congress to bestow upon the President the powers exclusively conferred by the Constitution upon the Congress itself.

Far greater authorities on constitutional law than President Roosevelt very positively assert that the Congress cannot legally divest itself of the powers conferred upon it by the Constitution.

Daniel Webster said:

"The most perfect and absolute good faith in regard to every stipulation in it (the Constitution) is indispensable to its preservation. Every attempt to accomplish even the best purpose, every attempt to grasp that which is regarded as an immediate good, in violation of these stipulations, is full of dangers to the whole Constitution."

And continuing in the same vein, he declared:

"I am not partly for the Constitution and partly against it; I am wholly for it, for it altogether, for it as it is, and for the exercise, when occasion requires, of all its just powers, as they have heretofore been exercised by Washington, and the great men who have followed him in its administration . . .

"I am committed against any and every derangement of the powers of the several departments of the government, against any derogation from the constitutional authority of Congress, and especially against all extension of executive power."

THIS ATTITUDE of undeviating support of the Constitution is reflected in an unbroken chain of great decisions by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Take for example the dictum of the court in the leading case of Kilbourn v. Thompson. The court said:

"It is believed to be one of the chief merits of the American system of written constitutional law that all the powers entrusted to government are divided into the three grand departments, the executive, the legislative and the judicial; that the functions appropriate to each of these branches of government shall be vested in a separate body of political servants and that the perfection of the system requires that the lines which separate and divide these departments shall be broadly and clearly defined.

"It is also essential to the successful working of this system that the persons entrusted with power in any one of these branches shall not be permitted to encroach upon the powers confided to the others, but that each shall by the law of its creation be limited to the exercise of the powers appropriate to its own department and no other."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT justifies himself by saying that this action of Congress in conferring its powers upon the executive—which is held by the Supreme Court itself to be unconstitutional—has been taken before.

That only makes the procedure the more dangerous to our American institutions and our republican form of government.

Every unconstitutional act creates a precedent and the more often an unconstitutional act is performed, the more force it acquires as a precedent and the greater is the probability that the unconstitutional act will be again repeated.

The precedent which may have before been established, President Roosevelt now takes as a justification for his present unconstitutional action.

The precedent which in turn Mr. Roosevelt establishes may some day be taken by an autocratic executive to justify unconstitutional action which might be altogether unworthy and injurious to the Republic.

There are several points to be considered concerning the action of Congress in divesting itself

FAKE DEALS CHARGED BY U. S.

Bank Crash Loser Tentatively Passed For Jury Service

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP.)—Charles E. Mitchell, for years one of the giants of Wall street, went on trial today charged with juggling tax figures to make a net income in 1929 and 1930 of more than $4,000,000 look likt a net loss.

The government asserts that in those two years Mitchell, former head of the National City Bank and its affiliates, should have paid income taxes of $858,429.68. He paid none at all, net losses being shown through sale of securities at a price far below what he had paid for them.

Testimony before a Senate committee was to the effect the sale was made to his wife.

The government charges that these sales were spurious, were made solely to show a loss which did not really exist, and with the understanding that he would buy the stocks back after income taxes had been evaded.

Selection of the jury began in mid-morning with Mitchell, grey-haired and stocky, watching intently from the counsel table as one talesman after another was rejected.

After a score of non-descript prisoners were led to the bar to plead to liquor, narcotics and other charges, Judge Henry Goddard ordered the courtroom cleared of spectators. A panel of 90 talesmen was ready from which to select the Mitchell jury.

All morning Max D. Steuer, Mitchel's counsel, veteran of many noted trials, sat before the jury box and whispered questions to prospective jurors.

So inaudible was his examination that the court clerk had to move his table close beside Steuer's chair, Mitchell had to cup an ear with his hand, and, on one occasion Judge Goddard remarked that the court would be interested in hearing what was going on.

BATTLE POLICE IN CAR TAG WAR

JACKSON, Mich., May 11.—(AP.)—Five officers, armed with a warrant, dodged a barrage of broken glass, canned food and auto tools today to smash their way into the firmly-anchored and barricaded automobile of Ernest A. Moross, 58-year-old Mosherville (Mich.) crusader against the high cost of license plates, and remove Moross and his wife to jail on a charge of driving with improper license plates.

Instead of surrendering last night when they were stopped by state police, the pair locked themselves in the car, which they had stocked with food, clothing, and a small stove. State police towed the machine to a Jackson garage, and chained it to a post so Moross could not drive away.

Today, however, the police obtained a warrant. One officer smashed a rear window, the other broke through a door. Moross decided to make a peaceful exit. Mrs. Moross, however, hurled broken glass, food and tools, and was carried screaming from the car.

U. S. CONTROL OF ALL INDUSTRY PROPOSED BY ROOSEVELT

TAX SUGGESTED TO REGULATE BUSINESS

Public Works Program Near Agreement; Loans by R. F. C.

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—A precedent shattering proposal by President Roosevelt for federal control of business and industry, through the government's constitutional power of taxation, was studied today by administration leaders on Capitol Hill.

The President favored federal regulation of all commerce, intrastate as well as interstate, in order to spur the economic recovery of business and industry. He believed this could be achieved, not by invoking the constitutional power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce, but by imposing a national processing or occupational tax on all industry and then exempting such units as voluntarily carry out the government's program for economic recovery.

AMAZING VENTURE

This procedure for regulating business would mark an amazing venture on the part of the federal government.

The President would use the taxing process to benefit both labor and owners.

Labor would be benefitted by agreements to shorten the work week, to improve working conditions, to eliminate child labor and to fix minimum scales of wages. Owners would be helped by agreements to fix a minimum sale price on a commodity, to eliminate price wars and ruinous competition.

Under the President's plan, if a majority of the units in an industry adopted one of these agreements, then the federal government would help to impose it on the entire industry. This would be accomplished by exempting from a new federal tax those those units which carried out the agreement.

LEGALITY STUDIED

The immediate fate of the plan rested upon constitutional issues. Never before has the federal government undertaken to regulate intra-state commerce through imposing of a processing tax. It has imposed inspection taxes and regulated interstate commerce, but it failed to stamp out child labor because its effort was held to be an interference with intrastate commerce.

The President submitted his views, along with several other plans for regulating industry, to Congressional leaders at a series of conferences in the White House. He suggested that a new public works act be attached to the regulatory bill, with provisions not only for federal, state and municipal projects but for extending aid to private industry in expanding construction work.

There were indications of an early solution of the controversy over a public works program. The principal obstacle has been the demand of the Treasury Department that any new bond issue be accompanied by some plan for its payment.

TEA, COFFEE TAX

Some administration advisers suggested a processing or sales tax on tea and coffee to amortize a bond issue of $1,500,000,000. The President was said to favor this sum as the maximum. Congressional leaders urged a $3,000,000,000 fund, while three insurgent senators introduced a bill, calling for a $6,000,000,000 program. Those opposing a special tax pointed out that $20,000,000,000 of bonds were floated during the war without a special tax and retired by the revenues from general taxation.

One decision was reached by administration leaders with the President regarding the construction program. That was to provide for special loans to industry from the R. F. C. to spur private construction work. The fund will be divided between federal construction and aid to states, counties and cities for public projects.

LEADERS PUSH NEW TAX BILL

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(INS.)—Administration leaders, happy over final enactment of the farm relief-inflation bill, drove the Senate today toward passage of the budget-balancing tax bill.

The farm relief-inflation bill was to be sent to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature as soon as it is properly enrolled.

The tax bill carried three special taxes. One provision would extend the one-cent-a-gallon Federal gasoline tax for another year, with an anticipated revenue of $137,000,000. Another $31,000,000 would be collected by a 2 per cent tax on the gross receipts of electric power companies on their sales to domestic and commercial consumers and a 1 per cent sales tax on electricity consumed by industrial establishments. Factories were classified as industries while stores and office buildings were tagged commercial consumers.

Two other emergency bills on the administration's program for enactment this week were the Muscle Shoals and national "blue sky" laws. Both were in conference, with early agreements expected.

Girl on Picnic Falls To Death in Stream

Child Drowns After Plunge from Swing Into Deep Creek

The story of how little Ruth Young, 4, of Washington street extension, Carnegie, toppled from a tree swing into the muddy flood waters of Chartiers Creek and was drowned, was being told today by her "big" sister, Agnes, 9, and a companion, Betty Jane Wright, 10.

The child died early last night after physicians and first-aid crews made a vain effort to revive her on the bank of the swollen stream while hundreds of spectators watched.

The swift current washed Ruth nearly a mile downstream, and she was pulled from the water by James Aspel, 28, a Heidelberg fireman, who had made a heroic 25-foot leap from the old Heidelberg Bridge to the rescue. With the child in his arms, Aspel was forced several hundred feet downstream before he was able to reach the bank.

Ruth had accompanied her sister and Betty Jane on an after-school picnic up the stream. A picnic lunch, packed by Ruth's mother, Mrs. Edith Young, had been eaten, and the children were at play on a swing which hung suspended from a large tree on the bank of the stream.

Ruth, on the swing, was propelled far out over the water by her companions. In some manner, it is believed, she lost her balance and fell into the water.

Screams of her companions brought scores to the banks to watch for the child. She was sighted by Steve Kushner and Ernest Phillips, both of Heidelberg. Both plunged into the cold water, but neither was able to reach her.

Aspel stood ready on the old bridge, and leaped in when he sighted the child.

London Paper Says 'Dictators' Will Attend Parley

LONDON, May 11.—(INS.)—Under the banner headline "Three Dictators for London," the Evening Star declared today:

"Political circles would not be surprised to see Roosevelt, Hitler and Mussolini attending the world economic conference."

LONDON, May 11.—(AP.)—Fresh reports, described as "well authenticated" that President Roosevelt is coming to the world economic conference resulted in smashing headlines in this afternoon's newspapers.

There was much interest in one rumor that the President was coming on the new cruiser Indianapolis.

PHILADELPHIA, May 11.—(AP.)—The Philadelphia Record says: "A well-authenticated rumor, bolstered by activities at the Philadelphia navy yard," indicates President Roosevelt is preparing to make a dash across the ocean to the world economic conference in London next month. The paper said:

"Although there has been no hint the President would attend the conference, navy officers here are preparing the new 10,000-ton cruiser Indianapolis for the fastest Atlantic crossing ever made by a surface craft."

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP.)—It was reiterated today at the White House that President Roosevelt has no present intention of attending the London economic conference opening on June 12.

The fitting up of the cruiser Indianapolis to accommodate him was described as preparation for taking him on the cruiser's "shakedown" trip from Eastport, Me., to Baltimore next month.

The possibility of the President going to London should circumstances require his presence is not put beyond possibility by some of his friends, who recall his readiness to do unusual things when he thinks the situation requires it.

3 BOYS DROWN, BODIES FOUND

CALIFORNIA, Pa., May 11.—The bodies of three boys, drowned in the Monongahela River at Stockdale yesterday when their skiff capsized, were recovered today within 50 feet of where they sank.

Floyd Crouch, 19; his brother, Howard, 17, and John Mantus, 15, were drowned when waves from a passing towboat overturned their skiff as they dragged a heavy log downstream.

Sixteen searching parties dragged the river all night and this morning. Today towboats moved a string of barges moored near the Colonial docks, and a short time later a searching party recovered the bodies.

NEW BANK BILL GUARANTEES DEPOSITS

Senate and House Near Agreement After 2-Year Feud

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 11. — A revolutionary policy of nation-wide insurance of bank deposits was before Congress today, with Democratic leaders hopeful of enactment of legislation before adjournment.

The new policy, heralded as the most important banking proposal since establishment of the Federal Reserve system, was embraced in similar bills introduced in Senate and House by Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, and Representative Steagall (Dem.), of Alabama.

With administration backing for the principle of the measure, the two bills offered for the first time the possibility of healing the breach between Senate and House which has prevented bank reform legislation for two years.

Limited branch banking is proposed in the new Glass bill.

DEPOSITS GUARANTEED

Under both the Glass and Steagall bills, deposits guarantees would be provided as follows:

Deposits up to $10,000 to be insured 100 per cent; $10,000 to $50,000, 75 per cent; excess of $50,000, 50 per cent.

All banks of Federal Reserve system, both state and national, would be eligible to join on equal terms.

Under Glass bill, state non-member banks would be eligible on applying for membership in Federal Reserve system; under Steagall bill upon examination as to soundness and paying charges.

The drastic bank reform provisions of the Glass bill passed by the Senate last session were adopted in both bills.

Under these provisions national banks would be forced to give up their securities affiliates. Private banking firms, such as J. P. Morgan and Co., would have to quit accepting deposits or give up investment banking; the federal reserve board would be given power to restrict diversion of bank funds for stock manipulation, and otherwise the board's regulatory power would be strengthened.

Senate Group Resumes Harriman Bank Quiz

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(INS.)—As its next witness in the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company investigation, the Senate subcommittee headed by Senator Stephens (Dem.), of Mississippi, today requested former Assistant Attorney General Nugent Dodds to testify.

The sub-committee planned to question Dodds regarding the failure of the Department of Justice to institute criminal action against Joseph W. Harriman, New York financier, for more than three months after it received evidence of irregularities in the Harriman bank. These irregularities, for which Harriman was indicted after the Roosevelt administration took office, were estimated by a national banking examiner at $1,393,000.

Pole made the amazing statement that defalcations by bank presidents were "very common" and therefore were treated as "routine matters" by his office.

Startled by Pole's admission, investigating senators announced they would go to the bottom of the Harriman directors' bank stock pool run on depositors' money. Chairman Stephens said the committee would question the 25 directors whose speculation was financed with $1,300,000 of depositors' cash. The directors deny they knew how the money under their management was misused.

LINDY KIDNAP TARGET—MEANS

Evalyn Walsh McLean of $356,000 to use as ransom.

Means said he believed a man named "Irving Fenton" and possibly another named "Wellington Henderson" had an important part in abducting the child.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, heard the statement by Means but declined to comment.

MEANS COMMUNIST

After outlining his activities as a German secret service agent, Federal investigator and private detective, Means said "Henderson" was head of the Third Internationale in this country and presided over Communistic headquarters in Detroit. He said he met "Fenton" when the latter came to meet an inmate friend of Means at the Atlanta Penitentiary.

He said "Fenton" had asked him to go in with him on the kidnaping, but that he declined. Means added that after he left the penitentiary he and "Fenton" did some work together.

Means sad after reading of the Lindbergh kidnaping, he was convinced the two had committed the crime.

BABY'S HIDING PLACE

Means said that later he got in touch with "Henderson," and added:

"Henderson said he wanted Col. Lindbergh kidnaped in order to show criminals all over the country how easy it was to hold prominent men for ransom. He said he wanted hundreds of kidnaping to spring up all over the country.

"Henderson said that the baby was hidden in a dugout used by bootleggers as a storing place for wrisky."

He then related how he had learned that Mrs. McLean was interested in securing the return of the child and had come in contact with her.

CAPITAL GUARDS AGAINST BONUS DISORDERS

25 Policemen Posted As Precaution; 'Army' Split

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP.)—A detail of 25 police from the Washington force was sent to Capitol Hill today to do guard duty.

There were no veterans visible in the grounds or around the building at the time.

A group of marchers, camped on a vacant lot adjoining the House office building, had decided to yield to police orders to move.

Harold Foulkrod, of this city, and Mike Thomas, of Camden, N. J., in speeches told their followers that they "must give way to the law."

Consequently, the marchers—who refused to stay at Fort Hunt, Va., with the "Veterans Liaison Committee"—agreed to go to a site in Third street, Southwest, where they were told they could stay a day or two longer.

Addressing his group, Foulkrod frequently made reference to the liaison committees as "Communists," "copycats" and "chiselers." He said:

"The bonus expeditionary force began this movement on Washington. We asked 50,000 men to come to the capital to lobby for the bonus. Then the liaison committee stepped in and copied every move we had made."

Pelham D. Glassford, who was in charge of police when the veterans marched on Washington a year ago, spoke to Foulkrod's men shortly after they awakened this morning. He told them he believed they had been brought to Washington under "false pretenses," and that they should consider facts very carefully before they decided to stay indefinitely.

Irish to Attend World Conference

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, May 11.—(AP.)—President Eamon de Valera announced in the Dail Eireann today that the Irish Free State had accepted invitation to attend the world economic conference in London June 12.

By heathen Macaulay meant, probably, a human being living outside the influence of the Church of England.

That church, as regards its outward forms and dignities, will probably pass away with India still "heathen."

THERE ARE a hundred million more of the heathen in India now than there were in Macaulay's day, because the British have protected the Hindus from plagues, famines and from massacre by savage tribesmen to the north.

Changes and improvements come slowly, not that it is desired to suggest that a change from the philosophy of the Brahmins to Church of England teachings would be "an improvement" for Asiatics.

THE "BE KIND" magazine is amazed that "Uncle Sam should call the eagle his national emblem, while paying bounties in less than 10 years for the killing of 41,812 eagles," in Alaska.

There is nothing abnormal about that. We want one great emblematic American eagle, not thousands of others that kill lambs, fawns, and birds that "civilized men" enjoy shooting.

The lion is the national emblem of the British, yet an Englishman enjoys nothing more than going to Africa to shoot a lion, except, perhaps, telling about it afterward.

Doctor Denies Intimacy With Girl Suicide

CHICAGO, May 11.—(AP.)—The charge that police coerced him into confessing intimacies with the girl who yesterday plunged to her death from his twenty-third floor office was made today by Dr. Maurice M. Restell.

He made the accusation just before opening of a coroner's inquest into the death of pretty Rebecca Claire Roche, 24, Northwestern University graduate and formerly Dr. Restell's assistant in his dental office.

He loved Rebecca, Dr. Restell said, but added:

"The police insisted I had been too friendly with the girl. I finally told them—'to write what you want.' I was tired and couldn't stand it any longer."

Present at the inquest were Dr Anudred C. Roche, physician of Calumet, Mich., and Mrs. Restell, who, on the advice of her attorney refused to testify, but affirmed her faith in her husband, called him an "ideal husband" and saide he "has done no wrong."

Following Rebecca's death plunge, Dr. Restell and his wife unhesitantly traced the developments of a triangular affair of affections. She had known of her husband's love for his pretty assistant, Mrs. Restell said, and offered him an ultimatum—choice between herself and the girl.

Just before the girl's death the three had held a conference in Dr. Restell's office seeking to solve their difficulties. Her husband refused to declare his love for Rebecca at that time, Mrs. Restell said, and the girl became hysterical.

MYSTERY VEILS MURDERS OF AGED ECCENTRIC AND AIDE

VICTIM'S BEARD TORN OUT BY ROOTS

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP.)—The strange life of the eccentric Edward Ridley was the field police raked today for clues to his equally strange death.

They hunted for some hint of an enemy — an enemy with a hatred so great that it would leave the 88-year-old man dead on the floor of his sub-basement office with his beard torn out by the roots, his head crushed and an ear torn away.

BODIES FOUND

The bodies of Ridley and his secretary, Lee Weinstein, were found yesterday afternoon. Weinstein, 44, had been shot.

Further complicating the mystery was Ridley's will, filed today, containing a bequest of $200,000 to the secretary, only if Weinstein were alive when Ridley died. Otherwise the $200,000 was to revert to the residue, which is divided among grand-nieces and grand-nephews.

The size of the estate was not estimated, but specific bequests contained in the will totaled $812,500, including $50,000 to Robert Morsley Ridley, of San Francisco, a nephew.

Robbery was not the motive of the murders. The old safe in the office had not been touched, nor had any papers; and the pockets of the two men had not been rifled.

OTHER MURDER—

The double murder appeared as insoluble as the murder in the same weird setting two years ago of Herman Moench, 65, Ridley's secretary and assistant for half a century.

Ridley's investments in tenanted real estate were said to have been extensive. They were described as largely in the crowded East Side in an area not far from the sub-cellar office.

None has been found who ever knew Ridley to talk to himself or of his life. He had been a merchant and a successful one. He lived in Fanwood, N. J., commuting daily on the same train. His home was a boarding house; but though he had lived there 35 years, none knew much about him.

The girl was prostrated with remorse after the accident.

Today they found her dead. She had hanged herself.

Freddie Prince and Theodore Geisler, companions of the Maug bandits in the Western Penitentiary break two weeks ago, went back to the prison today.

They were transferred from the county jail. Handcuffed together, they went back under the muzzles of riot guns and revolvers in the hands of 12 deputy sheriffs.

John Maug and Edward Turpack were reported to have been the occupants of a speeding car which forced H. R. Heffron, 167 Train avenue, off Banksville road and down an embankment this morning.

ITALIAN TRAITOR SHOT IN BACK

ROME, May 11.—(AP.)—Ugo Travaglia, a warrant officer in the Italian navy, was executed by a firing squad today for disclosing naval plans to a foreign power.

His accomplice, a beautiful Italo-French woman, was granted a stay of 24 hours while the King considers her application for mercy.

The accomplice, Camilla Agliardi, also was sentenced to death after the secret trial.

He begged the pardon of the marine firing squad as he faced death and then shouted:

"Long live Italy!"

The trial was completed last night. The officer's wife did not know his whereabouts until two days ago, as the proceedings were kept secret.

Mlle. Aubert, who also filed suit against her wealthy husband, was refused a divorce.

The marital difficulties of Morris and his beautiful French wife date back more than four years. The most amazing episode in the long-drawn-out legal tangle occurred when Morris won a court action restraining Mlle. Aubert from appearing on the Paris stage while still his wife.

Incensed over the action, Mlle. Aubert went to the United States, where she appeared on the stage and in the films.

LOS ANGELES, May 11.—(AP.)—Frederico de la Vega, Argentine film actor, accused of kidnaping Nancy Torres, Mexican screen actress, was held today in the west Los Angeles jail.

The 22-year-old actress, who is not related to Raquel Torres, featured film player, and who recently arrived from Mexico City, said she was kidnaped when she refused his escort to her home after visiting a Hollywood night club. She said she and Vega quarreled after spending the evening together.

Miss Torres alleged she was taken to a house in Santa Monica and beaten, later escaping and reporting the affair to police.

A charge of disorderly conduct had been lodged against him. He was released yesterday from Allegheny General Hospital.

Nazarro told Magistrate Leo Rothenberg:

"I took the tablets by mistake. I had a headache and thought I was taking aspirin."

Prior to his hearing, Nazarro sniffed the spring air from the balcony of the home of Margie Nelson, night club entertainer, 1500 Edgehill avenue, Dormont. She had found him seriously ill when they met to keep an engagement Sunday night, and took him to the hospital.

The young man said:

"It's great to be alive. I'm feeling fine."

Margie said she and her mother were going to nurse him back to health.

'GENTLE' POLICE OFFICER HURT

Patrolman Andrew Aul was in Mercy Hospital today ruminating on the recent edict forbidding police from subduing prisoners by force except in extreme cases. The order followed the death of a prisoner from a policeman's blow.

Aul obeyed the order yesterday in arresting Steve Mamula, 26, of 2800 Sarah street. Instead of using his mace, he tried to hold the prisoner, who, he reported, was intoxicated, at South Twenty-seventh and Carson streets. The latter grappled with Aul and threw him to the street, injuring his knee.

Mamula was held over in South Side Police Court today on a disorderly conduct charge until Aul is discharged from the hospital. He said he was celebrating a friend's birthday.

KING'S ILLNESS BARS COURT ATTENDANCE

8 U. S. Debs Soothed By Wales as Proxy As They Curtsey

LONDON, May 11.—(INS.)—Bringing keen disappointment to the American women to be presented, official announcement was made today that King George will be unable to attend tonight's royal court at Buckingham Palace owing to an attack of rheumatism.

While they will miss their chance of curtseying before the king, the American presentees, however, will probably get a close view of the Prince of Wales, who is expected to deputize for his father.

Amid scenes of unrivaled splendor Queen Mary, assisted by the prince, will hold the first of the five royal courts of the 1933 season.

GOLDEN THRONES

Seated on golden thrones in the magnificent red-and-gold throne room of Buckingham Palace, they will receive some 800 men, matrons and debutantes representing the social and diplomatic life of the world.

Eight Americans — a smaller number than usual—will be presented. They are Miss Mollie Flagg, of Far Hills, N. J.; Miss Betty Colsan, of Richmond, Va.; Mrs. Robert Frazer, Miss Anne Howard, Miss Marion Howard and Miss Hanna Locke, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Grace Robert, of Coronado, Cal., and Miss Charlotte Lyman, of Boston.

DEBS CAN'T SMOKE

The debutantes awaiting their turns to bow before the Queen will be permitted to park their automobiles in the palace forecourt and quadrangle.

Smoking while waiting in the automobiles will be banned.

Despite economic conditions, the court will be as brilliant as in former years, the state apartments, banked with flowers from the royal gardens, forming a magnificent setting for the glittering spectacle.

Resplendent in her famous tiara and necklace of priceless diamonds, Queen Mary will wear the blue and silver ribbon of the Order of the Garter over her gown.

Both men were treated at Presbyterian Hospital. Kovach was also given a summons.

According to witnesses, the car driven by Mrs. Boyd struck the smaller automobile, hurling the two men into the street. Mrs. Boyd was uninjured.

DRESSMAKERS WIN

PHILADELPHIA, May 11.—(AP.)—Settlement of a strike of 5,000 dressmakers was effected early today by the agreement of manufacturers to grant an immediate 10 per cent pay increase and reduce workers' hours from 50 hours a week to 44 hours. The workers had asked for a 20 per cent raise.

Union officials said the strikers probably would return to work tomorrow or Saturday.

Mrs. Pinchot Ridicules Martin as He Recants

SCRANTON, May 11.—(AP.)—A "flaming red costume," which now appears to have been only a dark mulberry, adds fresh fuel to the long-standing controversy between Gen. Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, and Governor and Mrs. Pinchot.

In a copy of a prepared address, which Martin's press representative gave out as the one which the general was to deliver at an American Legion conference yesterday, he was quoted as assailing "a prominent Pennsylvania woman" parading in a "flaming red costume" with strikers and asserting "red is the color of revolution."

The prepared text did not identify the woman in red or the location of the parade, but it was recalled that several days ago Mrs. Pinchot took part in a demonstration of striking girl workers in Allentown. She was garbed in what male observers termed a "red dress."

Martin make no reference to the woman in red in his address, and before the meeting he announced he did not intend to discuss that phase of the advance copy of his speech. He said the remarks were in the original transcript, but that he thought it was understood the references to the woman in the red costume were "out."

At her home in Milford, Mrs. Pinchot made light of the incident. She said:

"Poor Gen. Martin. I said last night (in an address) that he was a man-afraid-of-his-shadow and incapable of leadership.

"I didn't know then that he was afraid of children in sweatshops nor that he trembled before the color of a woman's dress. Mine, by the way, happened to have been dark mulberry and not flaming red as he said.

Lack of Minimum Wage Law Hampers Crusade

HARRISBURG, May 11.—(AP.)—Miss Charlotte Carr, deputy Secretary of Labor and Industry, today said the state has been unable to prevent the employment of children at low wages, although for six months it has been aware of some of the conditions in Lehigh Valley shirt factories.

She asserted that the department had concentrated its inspectors in that area, but because the state has no law fixing a minimum wage, prosecutions only could be brought for illegal working hours and insanitary conditions.

Miss Carr said that more inspectors with specialized training also are needed to check violations of existing industrial laws.

She explained that until workers are discharged, few make complaints and that frequently inspectors who have uncovered violations, find employes, fearful of losing their jobs, denying under oath, that they have worked illegal hours.

During the last six months, prosecutions for labor violations have increased 85 per cent over the previous six-month period, Miss Carr said. Much of the increase, she said, was due to the department's activity in the Lehigh Valley section.

Extra Session Likely To Ban Sweatshops

HARRISBURG, May 11.—(AP.)—Relief workers foresee a special session of the Legislature within the next eight months to consider legislation for elimination of "sweatshop" conditions in Pennsylvania industry.

In the belief that low wages and long hours in factories and mills are closely tied up with the unemployment situation, these workers insist that any extra session will have to consider the "sweatshop" question.

An extraordinary session seems certain in November or January to consider relief, minimum wage and maximum hour employment legislation. The month depends on whether the voters approve or reject the $25,000,000 relief bond issue in November. Factory wage legislation could be included in the call.

Officials affiliated with the distribution of relief funds assert that any system of "starvation wages" only adds to the burden of providing aid, inasmuch as persons employed at such low rates of pay are unable to exist without help.

TRYING TO ESCAPE WOES

MRS. LARRY FRENCH, LARRY, JR., AND PEPPERY "FLUFFY"

STAR'S FAMILY FLEES 'JINX'

Four French eyes opened drowsily and gazed at the bedroom ceiling of a Schenley Farms apartment today.

There wasn't much unusual about the ceiling—but those eyes found it a welcome sight as the film of sleep cleared away.

At least it wouldn't shake, shiver, crack and fall dustily to the floor.

The four eyes are the property of Mrs. Lawrence (Larry) French and Master Larry French, Jr.—wife and son of the Pittsburgh Pirates' star southpaw.

Just arrived in Pittsburgh to join husband and father French during the Pittsburgh baseball season, the pair brought memories of huddling for 12 hours in an open Los Angeles park during the recent earthquake. At least they knew Pittsburgh's earth doesn't quake.

Two recent robberies of their California home were classed today as minor troubles to the Frenches.

SLEUTH, TROOPS KILLED IN CUBA

HAVANA, May 11.—(INS.)—Authorities searched today for occupants of a speeding "death wagon" who assassinated Alfonso de La Llama, member of President Gerardo Machado's secret police force last night.

Two government troopers were killed and another seriously wounded in a clash between rural guards and guerillas near Ciego de Avila.

Students to Give Comedy-Mystery

"Brown Eyed Betty," a comedy and mystery drama in three acts, will be presented tonight by Hi B. Y. players, a group of Wilkinsburg Baptist High School students. It will be given in the Allison School auditorium. Margaret Eversole and Ernest Dowling have leading roles.

WELSH DENIES PLEDGE TO WED

PHILADELPHIA, May 11.—(AP.)—Charles Newbold Welsh, wealthy Philadelphian, today flatly denied he ever promised to marry Mrs. Estelle M. Wolon, Chicago divorcee, who is suing him for breach of promise.

"I never mentioned such a thing to her."

He also denied Mrs. Wolon's testimony that he had discussed plans for her divorce with the titian-haired tearoom proprietress.

Welsh declared in reply to a question by Judge Horace Stern that she began their friendship by a flirtation in a hotel at French Lick, Ind., coming to his room after first meeting him.

2 WIN AWARDS FOR INJURIES

John P. Kelly, of 247 Corliss street, who suffered leg and hip injuries when he fell on the icy sidewalk in front of the Consolidated Ice Company, was awarded $15,000 damages yesterday by a Common Pleas Court jury. The accident occurred November 26, 1930, at Penn avenue and Dahlen street. Kelly sued for $25,000, charging the company was negligent in failing to keep the sidewalk clean.

Bertha Doege, Goettman street, Troy Hill, won a verdict of $7,200 for injuries in her suit against the Pittsburgh Railways Company. She was hurt when a Mt. Lebanon car was derailed in West Liberty avenue, at Brookline junction, May 29, 1930. She asked $30,000 damages.

The Kelly case was tried before Judge Ambrose B. Reid and the Doege case before Judge George V. Moore.

of powers conferred upon it by the Constitution:

Primarily there is the unconstitutionality of such action. That is a question which no President has any authority to decide.

A President obviously cannot first arrogate to himself the powers of the Congress and then assume the powers of the Supreme Court in passing upon the constitutionality of his action.

According to the wisdom of the fathers, the government was divided into three co-equal branches, the legislative, the executive and the judicial.

The Congress makes the laws, the President executes them, and it is the Supreme Court which decides whether they are constitutional or not.

Deciding the constitutionality of an act is not the function of the President, any more than it is his function to invade the rights of Congress.

Mr. Roosevelt is a good President and his motives are undoubtedly good. But good motives do not justify the commission of unconstitutional acts.

Mr. Roosevelt is also undeniably an able President; but he surely cannot be any greater in ability and patriotism than the men who founded this government and created the Constitution for its guidance.

THERE IS NO occasion for Hitlerism in the United States, even benevolent Hitlerism.

Constitutional methods are ample to meet any situation and ample to give President Roosevelt full freedom of action along legal lines.

The Congress of the United States is heartily in sympathy with the benevolent purposes of the President.

President Roosevelt has often recommended to Congress a policy which has been adopted by Congress on the very next day.

In fact, most of the beneficial acts which have been performed by the administration have been performed in this legal and constitutional manner.

With a Congress so eager to co-operate with the President there is no justification whatever for departing from constitutional methods.

The only reason for Congress to confer any of its constitutional powers upon the executive is to give him the opportunity to perform arbitrarily and perhaps secretly acts which the Congress itself should perform constitutionally and publicly.

It is easily conceivable, moreover, that the acts so performed arbitrarily and perhaps secretly by the executive might not be at all in accord with public sentiment and public welfare.

Therefore, for every reason the constitutional methods of our government should be maintained.

First, because this is the only sound legal procedure;

Second, because it is the only safe procedure to maintain intact our American institutions and our republican form of government;

Third, because it is the only way in which the people of the United States can be protected from some hasty or unwise action, secretly performed, which might inure to their great disadvantage.

As Bryce, in The American Commonwealth, says:

"The Constitution of the United States has rendered and renders now inestimable services. It opposes obstacles to rash and hasty change. It forces the people to think seriously before they alter it or pardon the transgression of it. It makes legislatures and statesmen slow to overpass their legal powers, slow even to propose measures which the Constitution seems to disapprove. It altogether prevents some changes which a temporary majority may clamor for, but which will have ceased to be demanded before the barriers interposed by the Constitution have been overcome. It trains the people to habits of legality, as the Law of the Twelve Tables trained the minds of the educated Romans. It makes them feel that to comprehend their supreme instrument of government is a personal duty, incumbent on each one of them."

In Mr. Roosevelt the nation has a great and good President, but the best way for him to continue to be a great and good President is to abide by the provisions of the Constitution of the United States and not arrogate to himself either the rights of the Congress or the functions of the judiciary.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

KIDNAPERS WIN SYMPATHY

HARWICH, Mass., May 11.—(INS.)—A struggle of conflicting emotions today faced Neil C. McMath as to his part in punishing the kidnapers of his 10-year-old daughter, Margaret (Peggy) McMath.

McMath's happiness over the safe return of his daughter was described as dimmed by his concern for Mrs. Kenneth Buck and her son, innocent victims of the actions of Kenneth, the confessed abductor.

As for Cyril Buck, the "contact man," who with his brother, Kenneth, is in jail awaiting action by a special grand jury which convenes in Barnstable Monday, McMath has publicly expressed sympathy, and is convinced that he acted in good faith, thinking Kenneth was dealing with a band of desperadoes.

Detroit Beer Served In Advance by Legion

DETROIT, May 11.—(AP.)—The new 3.2 beer had its "coming-out" party last night so far as Detroit was concerned, with the American Legion as host. Convention Hall was crowded all night long with celebrators.

Beer does not become legal in Michigan until 6 p. m. tonight, but by special dispensation the Wayne County Legion Council was given a permit to serve the brew in advance.

LEVEE BLASTED IN FLOOD ZONE

BELZONI, Miss., May 11.—(AP.)—Three giant charges of dynamite ripped a crevasse approximately 50 feet wide in an unguarded section of the levee about a mile south of here early today.

National Guardsmen, dispatched to this section by Gov. Sennett to prevent levee destruction in the flood-harassed area, were concentrating efforts on the big Atchafalaya levee south of Silver City at the time.

Convicts were quickly dispatched to the scene of the dynamiting and were endeavoring to stop the gap. The third charge of explosive was of such force that windows in homes half a mile away were shattered.

Two Suspects Face Court for Arson

Two McKeesport men were ordered held for court today on arson charges in connection with a $10 fire. They are Frank Shalansky, 21, of 616 Hazel street, and Marty O'Grady, 32, of 414 Fifth avenue, who were given a hearing today before Magistrate John H. Skinner, in McKeesport's police court. The fire occurred early Wednesday morning at 1215 Jerome street, McKeesport.

$2,000,000 FIRE SUSPECT HELD

ELLSWORTH, Me., May 11.—(AP.)—Norman Moore, 25, said by authorities to have signed a confession that he set the fire which caused $2,000,000 damage and made 400 homeless Sunday night, was being held prisoner by the National Guard today.

In his alleged confession, Moore said "something in my head led me to do this."

CROONER DEFIES ATTACKERS

KANSAS CITY, May 11.—(AP.)—A standing invitation has been issued by James (Jarring Jim) Bausch, Olympic decathlon champion and former University of Kansas athlete, to the "four or five men" who attacked him yesterday to do it again—one at a time.

Bausch today still nursed some bumps as the result of the mysterious pummeling. He said he was set upon by several men after attending a fraternity party.

Bausch, who has turned orchestra crooner since his college days, said he believed the men tried to rob him and that he knocked one of them to the sidewalk before he also went down. Presumably as the result of being hit behind the left ear by a blackjack. After the fight he discovered his watch was missing.

Suspect in Theft Of Cigarets Held

After stealing six cartons of cigarets from a Downtown drug store, Steve Sheftick, 25, of DuBois, Pa., was held over at Central Police Station today on suspicious person charges. Sheftick was arrested last night after a chase.

GANDHI'S WIFE QUITS PRISON

POONA, India, May 11.—(AP.)—The wife of Mahatma Gandhi, who was sentenced to six months' imprisonment February 8 because of her participation in the campaign of civil disobedience against the government, was unconditionally released today, the fourth day of her husband's scheduled fast of three weeks.

With Lieut. Harry Adams, U. S. N. retired, who was chief officer and navigator on the Byrd Expedition to the South Pole, as narrator, an episode of the expedition is to be re-enacted during the KDKA Rin-Tin-Tin Thriller broadcast at 8:30 p. m.

On the same station at 10:30, Cheerio, dispenser of early morning inspirational chats, gives a special reading of Longfellow's "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast." Coleridge-Taylor's cantata of the same title provides the musical background.

Dvorak 'Carnival'

Dvorak's sparkling "Carnival" Overture, descriptive of the impressions of a lonely wanderer as he approaches a city in festive celebration, is featured on the Howard Barlow symphonic program broadcast via CBS-WJAS at 10:45 p. m. Also included are Grieg's "Last Spring;" Spanish Dance No. 1 from de Falla's "La Vida Breve," and the Prelude to Act III of Wagner's "Lohengrin."

Docking at Cape Girardeau, Mo., the Show Boat offers another old-time minstrel show with Paul Dumont in the guest spot on WCAE at 9.

Edwin T. Paulie, director of physical education at Swissvale High School for the last four years, describes a model summer community playground as guest speaker on the Retail Research Bureau's WWSW program, "A New Deal for the Home," tonight at 6:15.

On the same station at 9:15, James J. Malone broadcasts his first speech since announcement of his mayoralty candidacy.

Heralding the Carnegie Tech campus week show, "Over the Coals," to be presented at the Pitt Theater tomorrow and Saturday nights, five members of the cast offer a 15-minute program of original songs from the production over KDKA at 5 o'clock today. The student quintet is composed of Helen Jane Douthitt, Sue and Daisy Clark, Jane Francy and Emmanuel Breakestone.

Hugo Mariani, concert manager, under Frank Black, the NBC musical head man, resigns, believing that he was running along in a monotonous groove. Joseph Littau succeeds him.

A Thousand Yous

WHEN you pick up your newspaper and glance over the advertising, you quite unconsciously multiply yourself a thousand times.

In half or three-quarters of an hour you can, figuratively speaking, visit every progressive store in town. You virtually poke your head into every department of every department store. You run into the florist's, the confectioner's, the oculist's, the leading groceries, banks, theaters, all the various places that supply the things that make this the twentieth century and life worth the living. Here is a greater choice in clothing, food, furniture, books, pictures, musical instruments, travel, entertainment, opportunities for investment, the service of public utility corporations than any monarch of old could command.

It would easily take a thousand yous, traveling hard all day, to find out for yourself what the advertisements tell you in a few minutes morning or evening.

Advertisements deserve your attention. They deserve your confidence. Without advertising, the prices you would have to pay for many of the necessities you now buy for small change would make a dollar look like a snowball on the kitchen range.

Rogers Takes Alarm Clock On Tour

By AIRCASTER

In which the mail box gets some attention.

R. L. J., East End—Yes. Will Rogers actually bought an alarm clock last Sunday night to insure against running overtime in his talk—and then, with the clock under his arm, was late entering the studio. Will, by the way, started off Monday on a combination business and speaking trip—with his clock—and his next broadcast is all set except for one thing. No one seems to know exactly from what point on the map of the United States he'll go on the air.

Belle C., Bryn Mawr road—Suggest that you write Ralph Kirbery at the National Broadcasting Company, 711 Fifth avenue, New York.

Eleanor W., Beaver—No additional information on the subject has arrived at this desk. As a rule previous experience is desirable—the more the better—but not absolutely essential if you can prove you've "got the stuff." Further details should be forthcoming by writing NBC at the address given above, or the Columbia Broadcasting System, at 485 Madison avenue, New York.

J. S. K., Export—Address Ben Bernie at NBC (address above) or care of the Music Corporation of America, Chicago.

Eva, Monaca, and Blanchard F., Wilmerding—Both Rudy Vallee and Borrah Minevitch may be reached at NBC.

Mrs. R. B., Springdale, and "Mac," Pittsburgh—The daily program lists published on this page are arranged from programs sent to this desk daily by the individual stations. Corrections are received from the stations on the day of publication until approximately 11:30 a. m. Should there be an error, attribute it to a last-minute program change too late for publication.

Dick Liebert, the NBC organ masseur, apparently would enjoy starting a controversy. Therefore, he forwards his claim that jazz music is not emotionally provocative, as once stated in this space, and he points out that actually the most sensual music, ahem!, is to be found among the classics. He adds that he believes jazz is really more of a sedative than a stimulant, because of its monotony.

Does anybody want to fight with Dick?

The Five Star Theater programs will fade out on both networks May 26.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Every time there is an occasion to use the name of that Ohio town, the birthplace of Odd McIntyre, I get into difficulties with citizens of the town and their friends. William French, Beaver Falls, is finally forced to write, pointing out that if I remember "police" I can't go wrong (sounds subtle). So if you are ever in doubt, it's Galli-Police.

So many people have artificial flowers in their homes that Mrs. Max Green's suggestion as to their cleaning is timely. She melts a cake of paraffine; dips the flowers; shakes them slightly to remove the excess wax; molds them into the desirable form and then lets them set.

M. I. B. would like a good method for cleaning grease spots from wall paper. Can any Globe Trotter help us out?

Here is an appeal from William Dolan, unemployed Globe Trotter. His right leg was amputated below the knee. He needs an artificial limb. He has a carpenter friend who will remodel any one that is given to him. Perhaps you can help.

Catherine Walsh, Beech avenue: West Point cadets are appointed as follows: Four from each state at large, two from each Congressional district, two from each territory, four from the District of Columbia, two from natives of Porto Rico, 122 from the United States at large and 180 from the Regular Army and National Guard.

Of the 122 chosen at large from the United States, 40 are sons of veterans who were killed in action, or died from wounds received, or diseases contracted, while in the line of duty during the World War.

Appointments are made to fill vacancies as they occur. The selection of the candidates is left entirely up to the Senator or Congressman who has the vacancy at his disposal."

A large Tom turkey wandered away from home, reports Miss Dain, of Glen Caladh street. Has anyone seen a turkey that looks like it might have been lost or have you enjoyed one?

Betty Forcier wants to know about dimes, their rarity and value. Depends on their condition. See the bank's catalogue.

Mrs. Katherine Jones, old-time reader, can get her information about names of wild flowers from a natural history book at the library. I know poison ivy well, but I'm not sure that it's a flower.

Two Hospital Day Talks Broadcast

In connection with the observance of National Hospital Day tomorrow, Dr. C. Howard Marcy, medical director of the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh, speaks over KQV at 6 o'clock tonight.

At 6:40 on WJAS, Francis A. Keating, member of the board of the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh, explains National Hospital Day.

LONG'S SPORT TALK ON AIR

The weekly WCAE sports chat by James J. Long, Sun-Telegraph sports columnist, will be broadcast tonight at 7 o'clock in deference to a special program billed during Mr. Long's regular period tomorrow night.

In order that WCAE and WJAS listeners may hear NBC and CBS Mother's Day broadcasts featuring Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, the 2:15 broadcast of news by Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, will be cancelled tomorrow.

His 9:30 a. m., 12:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. news flashes will be aired as usual.

All four broadcasts are carried by both stations today.

'Our Family' Goes On Air Earlier

The widely-followed WCAE dramatic program, "Our Family," formerly heard from 8 to 8:30 on Saturdays, will go on the air 30 minutes later—from 8:30 to 9—beginning this week.

The sketches are produced under the direction of Ed Harvey, WCAE program chief.

Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt On Air Tomorrow

BUSINESS GAIN SEEN HERE BY BANKER

ago, they pointed out. Between 2,500 and 3,000 men are employed today as compared with a normal force of 4,500, it was reported, and the payroll has markedly increased within the last two weeks.

All lines of structural steel and tin plate were considerably improved over recent periods, with tin plate at between 55 and 60 per cent of capacity, records of the mills show.

Jones & Laughlin announce resumption of work at its No. 4 blast furnace in Aliquippa, which has been banked since last December, increasing the total of active furnaces to three. Renewed activity at Aliquippa is attributed to increase in orders, officials state.

KNIFE PLANT STEPS UP

Production in the shear knife division of Heppenstall Company, according to C. W. Heppenstall, Sr., president, is at 75 per cent of capacity. He adds:

"The men are getting more work hours in and there has been a decided upward movement during the last week and our prospects for the future are bright."

Many holders of Granite City Steel stock in the Pittsburgh district were heartened today by the statement of H. G. Niedringhaus, president, that during the last two weeks the company's business has increased more than a third in volume. The company is now operating at about 50 per cent of capacity.

The Butler plant of the American Rolling Mill Company is operating at 25 per cent of capacity, the highest level in two years, with a payroll of 1,800 workers.

At the Carnegie Steel Company it was reported:

"We have more people at work, with a fairly good increase in work hours, a better schedule and things are a little better."

The panorama of industrial pickup is directly reflected in the West Penn Power Company's 15 per cent increased industrial power consumption for the first week of May over the same week a year ago. It is understood this company is one of the first three in the United States to show a major improvement in industrial output.

INCREASED BUYING

Substantiating the reported increase in buying, George P. Gray, president of the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association, reports sales for Allegheny County in April were 1,441, compared with 1,267 for April, 1932. In the city, they were 1,162 against 1,045 for the same month last year.

Bearing out Mr. Robinson's statement as to retail trade, W. M. Jacoby, secretary of the Pittsburgh Retail Merchants' Association, said:

"In a general way the retail stores have shown an improvement in recent weeks. The pick-up started about April 1 and that month compares well with the same period of a year ago."

At Jeannette, Pa., the Pennsylvania Rubber Company is operating seven days a week at full capacity, according to W. O. Rutherford, president, who said:

"Business is better than at any time in the last four years, and I believe we are at the turning point."

AD PROSPERITY PARADE SET

Pittsburgh's place in the upward business trend will be depicted at the Pittsburgh Advertising Club's "Prosperity Parade," which opens next Tuesday night and continues through Friday.

The Chatterbox floor of William Penn Hotel will be given over to advertising accomplishments displays of local manufacturers and advertising agencies and exhibits of Pittsburgh-made products that are nationally advertised.

The entire display, according to show officials, will embody the city's answer to the national challenge to rout the depression. A "Prosperity Prom" will be the feature of the closing night.

Inez Courtney Gets Divorce From Broker

Rockefeller Returns North, Health Good

LAKEWOOD, N. J., May 11.—(AP.)—John D. Rockefeller, Sr., arrived here yesterday by auto from Princeton and went immediately to his estate, completing a trip from Ormond Beach, Fla.

His homecoming was so quiet and unobtrusive that few persons saw him. He appeared, however, in good health.

LOAN BY R. F. C. HELD HOPEFUL

Reasonable hope that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will aid Allegheny County in carrying out a proposed $23,000,000 public improvement program was reported today by the special county delegation on its return from Washington conferences with R. F. C. officials.

James Rae, former president of the Chamber of Commerce and a special agent for the County Commissioners, termed the discussions "very satisfactory." Several proposed improvements, such as the Homestead high level bridge, the Highland Park bridge over the Allegheny and the utilization of the Wabash tunnel and bridge were discussed.

Other members of the county delegation were Charles Haydock, consulting engineer; John M. Rice and Churchill B. Mehard, assistant county solicitor.

MUTINY DENIED ON ALOHA'S SHIP

LOS ANGELES, May 11.—(AP.)—Stories of mutiny and starvation aboard the carnival ship Carma at Mazatlan, Mexico, were denied in a letter received today by Aloha Wanderwell, whose husband, Walter Wanderwell, professional globe-trotter, was mysteriously shot to death aboard the craft in Long Beach Harbor last December.

The letter, from Mrs. Wanderwell's sister, Margaret Hall, said all difficulties attending the cruise had been adjusted.

It said Miss Hall, Eric Owens and others who joined the excursion would return to California on motorcycles, and that John T. Branson, who chartered the vessel from Mrs. Wanderwell, had severed his connection with the venture after returning to Los Angeles in search of funds.

TORNADO KILLS 54 IN DIXIE

LIVINGSTON, Tenn., May 11.—(AP.)—The seventh of a series of major tornadoes battering the South since March has raised the total of spring storm fatalities above 250 by killing at least 54 persons in the Cumberland Valley of Tennessee and Kentucky.

LABOR LEADER LAUDS HEARST RACKET WAR

By MATTHEW WOLL
Vice President, American Federation of Labor.
(Written for Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, May 11.—I want to compliment the Hearst publications for their effective method of calling attention to the gangster and racketeer in practically every sphere of our present-day life.

It is a campaign which must arouse public and officials to action. Sane and vigorous action should not alone wipe out the racketeer, but should materially reduce the burdensome cost of living. The racketeer has, unquestionably, made life precarious and more costly.

The organized racketeer is born of the Eighteenth Amendment. Prospering, he invaded other fields, almost all fields.

The racketeer found an ally in that phase of the anti-trust law which forbids business to come to reasonable price agreements. This law made for cut-throat competition. Many business men teetered on the brink of ruin. The racketeer, having learned the ropes in the illicit liquor business, offered his services to industry. The business man, made desperate by threatening bankruptcy, accepted his services.

The remedy offered by the racketeer was, and is, simple. He will harass the competitor and supply his client with cheaper labor. He also fastened his claws on those selling and delivering commodities and material.

When his client insists that he must employ union labor, the racketeer knows the remedy. Unable to get a union charter from an international of the American Federation of Labor, he goes to the state and gets a membership charter under some union name. Thus he organizes his own "union" and supplies workers at a wage far below that exacted by the legitimate union.

There was one such charter in the hands of a group of New York racketeers who menaced the life of a legitimate union. They offered it for sale at a price of $50,000, until recently. When the racketeer, also in the beer business, saw his income slip away with the recent 3.2 per cent beer amendment, he raised his price to $75,000.

This is happening many times, not alone in New York State, but throughout the country. The state should stop issuing so-called labor union charters to racketeers.

If industry could legally get together on the price situation there would be no room for racketeering.

HELD IN 'RACKET WAR'

MRS. KATHRYN CHERRY FRANK CHURIAZZI, 35

Mrs. Cherry, 309 Fifty-sixth street, and police-described "Big Shot" Churiazzi, 228 Gross street, two of seven held without bail today in the police war on racketeering in the Tenth Ward, where the ward chairman's home was bombed. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

What Are You Going To Do About It?

FAKE trade associations have been another.

In small industries all over the country—and, frequently, in some pretty big industries, too—the racketeer has been taking his unlawful toll both ways.

The workingman's pay envelope has to be shared with the racketeer, or else no job.

The business proprietor has to pay for "protection" or else his plant is dynamited, or his patrons are driven away.

Ask the law for protection? The victims of the racketeer fear the racketeer's vengeance far more than the racketeer has feared the law.

And the public has been paying the toll—millions upon millions.

"The racketeer has unquestionably made life precarious and more costly."

Every dollar extorted unlawfully by racketeers in your community adds to the cost of living.

Every crime of violence perpetrated by them disgrace your community.

What are you going to do about it?

PRESSED STEEL GETS RECEIVERS

The Pressed Steel Car Company was placed in receivership yesterday by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson, in an equity suit filed by William F. Southwell, a bondholder. The suit was filed in January, but litigation delayed final action on the petition for receivers. The company consented to yesterday's action.

The court appointed Attorney George D. Wick and Frank N. Hoffstot receivers. Their bond was set at $50,000. Hoffstot is president of the company. Wick is a member of the law firm of Campbell, Wick, Houck, Thomas & Nixon. The receivers are authorized to carry on the business until further order of the court.

The decree appointing the receivers says the company is temporarily embarrassed by existing conditions and is unable to discharge its matured obligations. The receivership is for the protection of creditors and assets of the company, the decree asserts.

END GANG GRIP ON TEAMSTERS

CHICAGO, May 11.—(AP.)—Alleged racketeer control of the Chicago Teamsters' Union was declared broken today by officials as they ordered 3,000 drivers to return to work at a reduced wage scale.

State's Attorney William J. Courtney was one of the first to announce the end of the strike, but declared that the war he and Mayor Edward J. Kelly declared against racketeers would be continued.

Breaking of the strike marked a victory for the Chicago Coal Merchants' Association, 187 of whose yards were closed in an attempt to break the grip the Trucking and Transportation Agency, alleged racketeering organization, reputedly had on the union.

Shortly before the end of the strike was announced, Charles W. McCoy, president of the United Coal Dealers' Association, told police two men fired at him as he was returning from a meeting of the association. What connection, if any, the attack had with the "coal war" was not revealed.

'BRAIN TRUST' BEHIND F. D. HELD MYTH

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

Famous diplomat and author and former U. S. Ambassador to Italy.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—There is no "brain trust."

The myth the White House is guided by a huddle of young advisers organized into a "wall around the President" was exploded today.

There is full authority for the statement that since the inauguration, no three of the reputed members of the brain trust have ever met to cook a plan or to serve a plan to the President. Some of the brain trust members have not even seen some of the others.

There is equal authority for the assertion the work of the young men whom he has tucked into government office or discovered among the new deal crew is not the work of an advisory council. The President desired to avoid any advisory council, which would be a target for his enemies.

He uses these rather youngish men—the Moleys, the Tugwells, the Warburgs, the Berles, the Douglases and the Bullitts, the Achesons and the veteran secretary, Col. Howe, and others individually, to fill specific jobs and individually as independent intellectual scout cruisers.

Mental Foragers

In the immense new sea of ideas to which the New Deal opens the gates these fellows are the mental foragers always under steam.

It is absurd, say those who know the machinery, to suppose that elder statesmen could serve that purpose. Good counselors such old-type men may be, especially those who have kept themselves flexible rather than gone hard set in this world of flux. Certainly old men are not equipped to make the voyages of intellectual discovery toward which the President sends the increasing circle of his reporter staff, that changing and growing staff who like reporters of the press have as part of their job the selection of what is hot from what is cold and what is useless from what is worthwhile. These scout cruisers help to increase his range and multiply his eyes and ears, not subtract from them.

At the moment such an announcement of the truth as to the mythical brain trust has a vast significance to the country and to the attitude of its citizens toward the emergency we are now in. The reasons for this are plain to anyone who has had long experience with the White House and also opportunities to observe the machinery around leaders abroad.

The first of these reasons is our well-grounded fear that any President may get into the hands of a White House pet, or into the center of a ring whose members lick their lips over the thoughts of power and publicity. Abroad, they are familiar with these groups. They call them cabals.

Around weak rulers these men weave their web of flattery. To repel invaders of this secret, sacred ring, they impute to all truth tellers who fall short of their own flattery the mean designs of unfair critics. Any leader has to watch scrupulously for attempts of such men—very human and natural and not necessarily villainous attempts—to nail down a complete monopoly of his own two ears. If any attempts develop now they will exhibit the same old familiar tactics. They will tell the President that any who come with good tidings are seeking office or favors, while those who come with unwelcome truth are soreheads.

Several Presidents poring over clippings at night have attributed press comment made in good faith and for an aid, as abuse; many of them in the executive office by day have slain faithful friends with the flash of resentment. Even when some recent Presidents have sent for men to advise them, it has been with the hope that the advice would be only applause. One Senator used to say:

"The President has sent for me to come to lie to him again."

Like a Brother

Roosevelt still remains unsurrounded. He says he is determined to speak to the country like a brother and that he wants the country to talk to him like a brother.

This desire raises the serious side of any myth that there is a brain trust. For the myth of a brain trust is the tragic myth that the President together with the silly concept of a thinking machine is going to get us out of our troubles by brewing a witches' cauldron. The denial of the existence of a brain trust is important because we do not want any wall around our President; it is vastly more important because as the President wishes, he may now toss overboard the idea that he is any miracle man surrounded by young alchemists who can turn every pound of dilemmas into a pound of gold.

The man who would not lie about the country's attitude today would be the one who said to the President:

"So far you have worked your shirt off for us. We elected you to attack and not to defend and you have done it. But what must we do?"

Everyone can know that there are three kinds of leaders—those who pamper us by preaching the rights of mankind, those who make us flabby by trying to do all the work themselves, and finally those who make leadership virile by demanding of us the performance of our obligation. The myth of a brain trust, because it tends to take responsibility from us, adds to the one sad lack in all the President has said into so many responsive ears as he talked to us like a brother.

For if we realize the President is no mobilizer of any miracle brain trust but a mobilizer of all of us then the country would probably say to him like a brother:

"Mr. President, we need the last of your awakened convictions and of our own to make us take a real hand in this fight for America. Those of us who can stand it need to be drafted for unpaid services. We need our own sacrifices to put down on the common pile, according to our capacity to give them.

"We are still soft, Mr. President.

Gay Adventure

"Put some muscles on our spirits, not for the qualities of more patience through affliction but for joint adventure gaily undertaken.

"We are not fortified to bear this rag of our depression on our backs. We want to shake it with our teeth.

"We are tired of love of handouts, privileges, possessions, raids on our Treasury, the excesses of our spoiled and coddled members. We are weary with the hope that tomorrow will be only just as good as the 'good old days' of our self deceit of 1929.

"We are tired of fixing a whole foreign world that over and over has rejected our crusading meddling. After all we only apply for the job of fixing the world's affairs with a letter of recommendation which says that we have mismanaged our own.

"We are weary with our own softness and our conceits and our infidelities.

"Where is the old love, Mr. President—the love of country and service to her? Make us go back to her without bugles, over the hard stones and upon our knees."

COAL LEADERS SCAN PLAN TO AID MINERS

Rehabilitation of the miner through leasing of farm tracts by the mining companies and federal government assistance in promoting self-sustaining projects today were urged before the coal division of the American Mining Congress in its closing sessions.

Clarence E. Pickett, executive secretary of the American Friends Service Committee, which has cooperated with the government in relief projects since the World War, outlined the needs as determined from a survey made in West Virginia and Kentucky.

Pickett urged adoption of the British penny-a-ton plan whereby funds are obtained for educational and social advantages for the miners. He warned against the troubles caused by evictions and urged operators to work with relief groups in planning such actions.

Inspection trips are planned tomorrow and Saturday. Pittsburgh was indicated as a favorable choice for next year's convention. John T. Ryan, of Pittsburgh, was elected chairman of the manufacturers' section. B. G. Shotton, Pittsburgh; Charles R. Delamater, Cleveland, and C. B. Officer, Chicago, were elected vice chairmen.

SCIENTISTS EXPLAIN

THE TRAGEDY OF IT—skin that is growing dull, dry, old looking, unattractive . . . you've often thought about it. Every woman has. But have you ever wondered about the cause of aging skin? Did you ever hear that as skin grows older it loses something . . . something goes out of it?

The Secret of Youthful Skin

Skin, science has found, contains certain precious elements. These elements, found in youthful skin of every type, keep it fresh, smooth, attractive, young . . . help guard it when exposed to wind, dust and sun.

The gradual loss of these elements is what makes skin get old looking, dry, unattractive. But scientists give this welcome and all-important message—you can now check the loss of these precious elements.

Now scientists attest the fact that Lux Toilet Soap, with its complete freedom from harshness, its ready solubility and its content of precious elements is an unquestionable aid in keeping the skin young looking . . . smooth.

Small wonder Lux Toilet Soap is used by the screen stars, and has been for years. 686 of the 694 important Hollywood actresses are enthusiastic in their praise. And women everywhere have been proving for themselves that this fine soap actually keeps skin fresher—younger—more attractive.

Lovely screen stars must have radiant, youthful skin. Small wonder this fragrant, white soap is the official soap in all the large film studios.

A Younger Looking YOU

SCIENCE tells you pure, safe Lux Toilet Soap actually contains precious elements all skin must have to look youthful. These elements are found in the skin itself—an abundance in fresh, youthful skin, less in skin that is growing old, unlovely.

HOLLYWOOD has proved through years of daily use this soap actually keeps every type of skin younger looking.

MILLIONS of women (and men) everywhere confirm Hollywood's experience.

Won't YOU prove the beautifying effect this fragrant, white Lux Toilet Soap can have on your skin?

"My skin certainly is ever so much more youthful looking since using it,"—— writes Betty Greene of New York

"When I read that the lovely screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap for their marvelous complexions, I began to use it, too. No wonder they are so enthusiastic. My skin certainly is ever so much more youthful looking since using this nice, white soap. Even within the first few weeks I noticed how much smoother and clearer my skin had become."

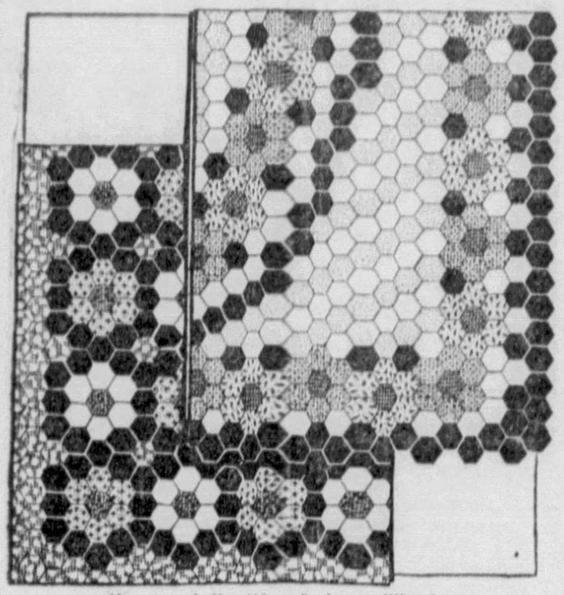
PATCHWORK QUILT PATTERN



Honeycomb No. 433. By Laura Wheeler

The hexagon one-patch, so popular with the needlewoman of generations past, can be used to form radically different quilts. Two very effective arrangements are given in all detail in this pattern. Though structurally the same, the variation in design is achieved through the distribution of the materials. The one shows a wreath and floral border arrangement, while the other is a repetition of a group of hexagons that can first be formed into a block and the blocks then attached. This one-patch type of quilt—made entirely of patches cut from the same pattern piece—was the first attempt of the needlewoman of the past to make an orderly arrangement of patch pieces, early quilts having been of the crazy-quilt type.

The pattern comes to you with complete simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for a pattern for this design to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Artichokes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me the correct way to serve and to eat artichokes? M.

The artichokes are served on a silver or china platter. This platter is accompanied by the gravy dish or any other convenient bowl for the sauce, usually Hollandaise. On the platter with the artichokes should be the serving spoon and the serving fork. With the bowl is the gravy ladle or other convenient spoon.

The guest takes the artichoke, with the help of the serving fork and spoon, from the platter, onto the individual plate. Then serves himself the sauce. The sauce is placed at the side of the plate.

Artichokes are eaten with the fingers. One leaf at a time is peeled off, the tip nearest the stalk is dipped in the sauce (Hollandaise, melted butter, or whatever is served with the artichokes) and the edible portion of the leaf is scraped off between the teeth. The remainder of the leaf is laid on the plate.

After all the leaves are pulled off, the heart of the artichoke is revealed and this is eaten with a fork, or with a knife and fork, as we prefer.

May Omit Attendants Parents

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married next month and I would like to have your opinion on this question: Is it essential, as well as proper, to invite the parents of the bridesmaids to the reception after the wedding ceremony at church, when only the members of the immediate families are to be present at the reception? B.

If your guest list is to be as restricted as this, it would not be necessary for you to invite the parents of your attendants.

RIVERA-R. C. A. MURAL FEUD DEADLOCKED

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 11.—"Lenin's picture stays in."—Diego Rivera, famous artist.

"Lenin's face must be substituted by that of an unknown."—Nelson A. Rockefeller, son of John D.

Such was the deadlock today in the furious controversy over the great mural masterpiece in the grand entrance hall of the 14-story R. C. A. Building in Rockefeller Center.

UPHOLDS PAINTING

Rivera, Mexican artist with Communistic ideas, painted the picture of Nicolai Lenin, apostle of the Soviets, in the mural, the central one of three illustrating "Human Intelligence in Control of the Forces of Nature." He insists that art is art and that Lenin should properly be in the group.

But—Lenin in the grand hall of a towering structure erected by the Rockefeller millions? Nelson A. Rockefeller decided "That's out."

Rivera was paid $14,000, completing full payment of his $21,000 contract and told his services were no longer required, even though the mural is unfinished.

HOPES FOR SUPPORT

The artist stormed and raged, legal action was threatened, but he declared he will be back on the job to complete the mural and that Lenin will remain.

He based this on belief that Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., will intervene and take his side in the controversy. Rivera said:

"Mrs. Rockefeller has a fine appreciation of art and has shown great interest in my work."

Nelson Rockefeller, in his letter to Rivera which precipitated the break, called the mural "thrilling," but said Lenin's portrait in a public building might offend many people.

'Army' Fund Leader Warns of Frauds

George E. Alter, chairman of the executive committee in charge of the Salvation Army's two-week drive for $98,250, today warned the public to beware of impostors. He said that the public should be sure that the solicitor displays a Salvation Army badge and is able to give an authentic receipt for the donation. The drive for funds opened yesterday.

Bucknell Lifts Ban On Co-ed Smokers

LEWISBURG, Pa., May 11.—(AP.)—Bucknell University today lifted the ban against women smokers, settling a four-year controversy by continuing restrictions only against such smoking on the campus, streets and public rooms.

7 HELD WITHOUT BAIL IN BOMBING OF POLITICIAN'S HOME

BEER RULINGS HERE DEPEND ON PARK

Many Points of New License Law Vague

District Attorney Andrew T. Park will be called upon for advice on the interpretation of the beer licensing law in Allegheny County.

The new law makes the District Attorney responsible for representing the County Treasurer in cases where his refusal of licenses to sell beer is tested in court. Hence it is admitted that the advice of the District Attorney as well as that of the County Solicitor will be sought in interpreting some of the vague points of the law on beer licensing.

As yet there has been no need for a final interpretation of the law, as no licenses have yet been issued by the County Treasurer.

NO OFFICIAL FORMS

No official forms have yet been issued, according to Deputy County Treasurer A. E. Anke. The County Commissioners have authorized taking bids for 20,000 forms and the licensing will proceed as soon as these have been received.

Already hundreds have applied at the County Treasurer's office, many bearing unofficial forms which had been printed elsewhere. These persons are being furnished with as much information as is available, but are being turned away for the present, Anke said.

Some doubt still exists as to the interpretation of sections of the law, Anke stated, and these will be taken up with the County Solicitor and District Attorney.

'REPUTATION' ANGLE

The law defines places where beer may be legally sold as "A reputable hotel, or incorparated club, or a reputable bonafide eat-

BEER LICENSE RACKET HINTED

Racketeers are dealing in beer license applications and bond forms, North Side restaurant men reported today.

Two rapid-fire salesmen have been visiting the restaurants and offering application blanks, and the necessary bond form, several days in advance of the County Treasurer. A digest of the beer law also was offered.

The price ranged from $1.25 to $2, the price being shaded to meet conditions. None of eight proprietors who said they had been solicited fell for the scheme. All had been to the County Treasurer's office and learned the county forms would not be ready for several days.

It was reported an agent for a bonding company had offered to supply the blanks, and to fill them out properly in return for his company's furnishing the bond.

EVICTION CASE PAIR HELD

W. L. Campbell, 55, of Tustin street, and Charles Humes, 25, of Oakland, were held for court by Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan today to await trial on charges which followed their alleged attempt to evict a widow from her home last night.

The widow, Mrs. Mary Arnold, 56, of 216 Standard avenue, Penn Township, wrested a revolver from Campbell, county detectives reported.

Testimony disclosed she had borrowed $393 from Campbell and was unable to pay a $60 installment due. Both defendants were released under bond.

SYNOPSIS

In previous installments, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw has told of her ardent courtship by Harry Thaw and of her great love for Stanford White. Through all her stories of gay Broadway parties and the adoration she commanded as a beauty of the stage runs her warning that "you can't break the rules and win." Yesterday Evelyn described a scene in Paris in which Thaw insisted she tell him whether she had had any affairs. Today she continues the reminiscences which she hopes will convince other girls that a clean conscience and respectability outweigh an unconventional life.

By EVELYN NESBIT THAW
(Copyright)

CHAPTER VII.

Again Thaw fell on his knees before me. He blubbered that I must tell him—was I still a "good girl?"

"In Heaven's name," I pleaded, "Don't talk so loudly. My mother will hear you. Please!"

It was no use. For three nights this torture had gone on until my head ached to the point of bursting. I was beside myself with physical exhaustion and lack of sleep. Never had I told anyone my secret—mine and Stanford White's—and I was terrified lest my mother would find out about it.

She adored Stanford White, worshipped the ground he walked on; thought him our best friend; that nowhere in the world could be found any one to compare with him and that he was the kindest, most unselfish creature existing on earth. I couldn't tell her. I just couldn't. That worried me more than anything else at the time.

Thaw Insistent

"Now, listen, Harry," I pleaded, "I've been on the stage in two shows. I like the work. I can earn my own living in the theater and support my mother that way.

"You seem to think I am in danger of going the wrong way. I have no such idea. On the other hand, I do not want to get married. So please let me go to my bed. Don't keep this questioning up any longer. I am almost crazy from these awful nights."

"Never," he said. "I will call your mother and put it up to her.

"Oh, don't do that! Don't do that! You promised me you wouldn't."

"All right, if you will tell me what I must know. I love you. Tell me, is it because of some man you won't marry me?"

Then I made a mistake. I have never ceased to regret. To my last moment on this earth I will suffer because of it. But in sheer desperation, I answered him:

"Yes."

Very quietly, he asked:

"Was it Stanford White?"

"Yes."

"Tell me about it."

Tears Bring Pity

As briefly as possible I told him. Instead of flying into a rage of fury, he wept, cried like a child. He walked the floor. In all my life I have never seen a man cry, weep like that.

It was terrible! Awful! And I pitied him. That old saying that "Pity is akin to love" is terribly true. And so a great pity for Harry Thaw came over me. It has never left me. I still pity him and feel sorry for him in some ways.

He kept walking the floor, sobs shaking his whole body.

"The beast!" he wailed, "the blackguard!"

And then he shrilled:

"But I knew it! I knew it all the time! I know more about it than you think I do. I had you followed. I knew about the Tower and other places."

Even then I didn't realize what that meant. But it meant that Thaw had employed detectives.

One night when the wind was howling about Madison Square Garden tower, I went to the window and was horrified to see sparks swirling about. I went to each of the windows on the three sides of the room to find the same thing. The air was full of flaming sparks. In terror I called Stanford.

"There must be a fire," I cried. He dashed to the nearest window.

"My God!" he exclaimed. "If the Garden is on fire and the

Roosevelt Must See the Sights Of White House

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Just heard Mr. Roosevelt is so busy he hasn't seen all the White House rooms and grounds.

Having explored it thoroughly during the Taft administration, we will explain the layout to Franklin D.:

There is the famous telephone booth that once leaked, but is now stuffed with chewing gum and cigaret papers.

Tread softly in the sunken garden of lobbyists and budding propagandists.

The conference room. The walls have ears and the keyholes have eyes.

The east lawn on which the eggs are rolled down. Some tough eggs have the habit of rolling back again.

We don't know a thing about the cellar and the attic, although we would be perfectly at home in either one.

SKIDMORE GUN VICTIM DIES

Wounds suffered in a gun battle with George Skidmore, youthful Pittsburgh bandit, in 1930, today had claimed the life of William Fox, 32, custodian of the Rattlesnake Mountain air mail beacon. Fox lived at Uniondale.

In the battle in which Fox and Private J. G. Olme, of the State Highway Patrol, were wounded, Skidmore and an alleged "pal," William Dutton, defied a posse of 200 officers and civilians.

Skidmore escaped, but Dutton was captured by Olme. The battle occurred in the Allegheny Mountains near Bellefonte.

Tech's Carnival To Open Tonight

Carnegie Tech's annual spring carnival will open tonight with the coronation of Miss Kay Wholey as campus queen. Tomorrow the inter-fraternity sweepstakes and a costume ball will be held.

President Thomas S. Baker will review the R. O. T. C. Saturday morning at a dress parade.

NEED $164,000 FOR MARKET

The city may be called upon to produce $164,000 out of earnings of past years of the North Side Market House to modernize the building.

This possibility developed today in a hearing before City Council. A group of North Side business men suggested borrowing $200,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, but Director Edward G. Lang insisted that the city owes the Market House Association $164,000 under the terms of the grant.

Councilman Robert Garland asked for a report from the Controller and the City Solicitor. Another hearing was set for next Thursday.

Lang holds that the market house was granted to the city with provisions that all earnings above operating expense were to be held in trust. The money has not been kept in a separate account.

New Borough Project Splits Township Folk

Wilkins Residents in Turmoil; Arrange Mass Meetings

Citizens of Wilkins Township are in a turmoil as the result of a petition to form a new borough to be known as Churchill in the neighborhood of the Edgewood Country Club.

The area involved would amount to approximately 51 per cent of the land in the township and approximately 28 per cent of the total valuation, according to those who oppose the plan.

Mass meetings are being arranged by the opposition. A rally was held last night at the Franklin School, Greensburg pike. Exceptions are to be filed in court before June 5, after which there is to be a public hearing.

R. A. McCrady and M. H. Hirshfield are the attorneys representing 31 property owners who have asked for the new borough.

The School Board of Wilkins Township has instructed its solicitor to fight the formation of the borough and the opposition has demanded similar action from the township commissioners.

Attorney McCrady, favoring the borough, said:

"It's the same old story. Ours is a suburban community, while the other end of the township is semi-industrial. We want the borough to develop our community."

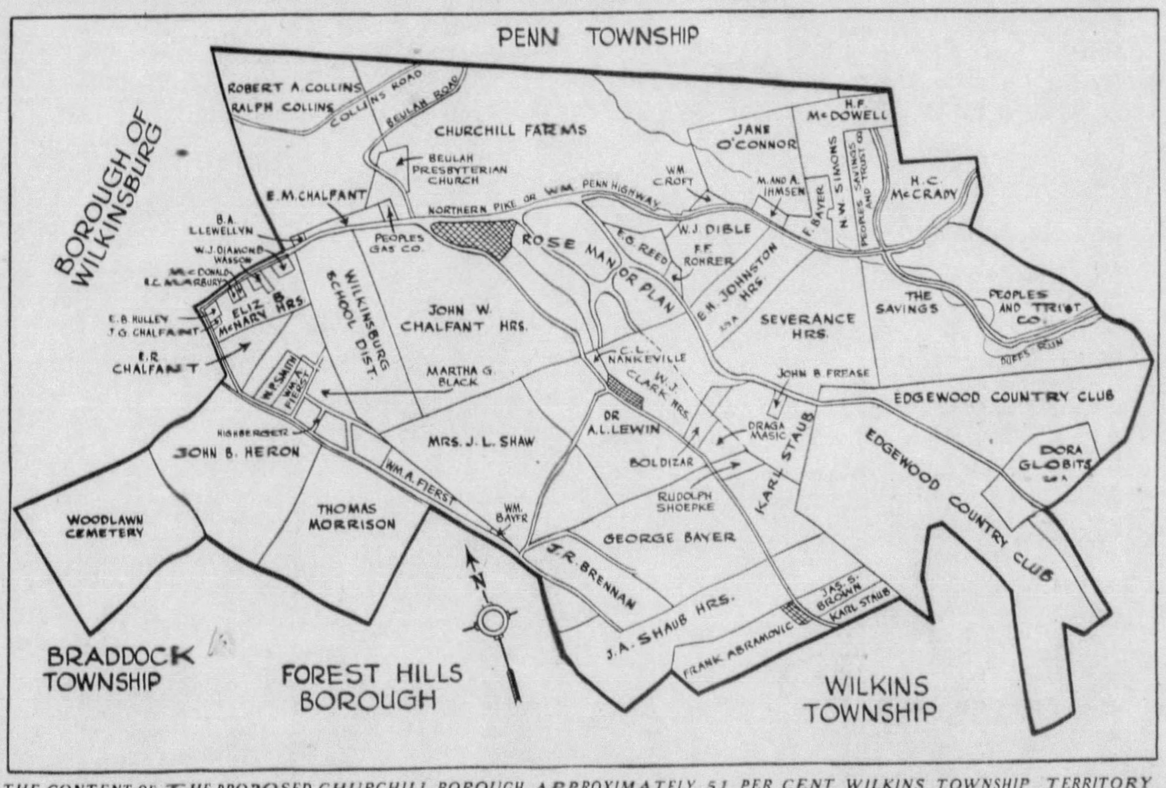
Asked if he expected to save anything in the tax rate, he replied that it depended on how much the new borough would do for its residents. He said:

"At least we could have our taxes spent where they belong."

The opposition, headed by A. A. McKeever, declares the proposed secession of the Churchill district is an effort to get a lower tax rate.

McKeever asserts substantial increases were made in assessments on real estate near the country club by the County Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes, and that the residents there are now seeking a lower millage to compensate for the increased valuation.

PROPOSED CHURCHILL BOROUGH, FOUGHT BY TOWNSHIP



THE CONTENT OF THE PROPOSED CHURCHILL BOROUGH, APPROXIMATELY 51 PER CENT WILKINS TOWNSHIP TERRITORY

The district seeking to organize itself as 'Churchill Borough' to withdraw from Wilkins Township, which is contingous to Wilkinsburg, with the consequence that residents of the township are organizing to petition Quarter Sessions Court against the formation of the borough. 'Churchill' would include Edgewood Country Club within its borders. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

Boyd Says Suspect Boasted About 'Protection'

BULLETIN.

Judge Frank P. Patterson today set bond for release of five persons held in connection with the bombing of the home of Charles Martin at $500 each, pending final hearing tomorrow on petitions for habeas corpus writs.

Frank Churazzi, one of the petitioners, was taken to Allegheny General Hospital under police guard when he complained of illness.

Seven persons were held without bail today as city and county detectives sought to loosen the racket grip in the Tenth Ward.

The bombing of the home of Charles Martin, Republican ward chairman, at 115 North Aiken avenue early yesterday was attributed by detectives to his refusal to seek favor for the racketeers with the new city administration.

Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd testified at the hearing before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg and asked that all seven be held.

RACKET CHARGED

Referring to Frank Churazzi, 35, of 228 Gross street, one of those arrested, he said:

"This is the big shot who threatened to run the police department and the detective bureau. He boasted that he could have any policeman fired who would not do as he wanted in connection with alcohol, numbers, gambling and speakeasy rackets. He threatened to have everybody reduced. He even put my detectives on the spot."

The others held were Mrs. Kathryn Cherry, of 309 Fifty-sixth street; David Gauta, 35, and Joseph Bondi, 32, both of 4823 Penn avenue; Nick Gurgiolo, 18, of 4823 Penn avenue; John Caldone, 21, of 6923 Greenwood street, and Joe Gurgiolo, 31, of 5164 Butler street.

BAIL SOUGHT

An attorney representing five of the group went to court at once in an effort to obtain their release on writs of habeas corpus. Judge Frank P. Patterson, long a foe of criminal elements in the city, will hear the petitions.

Attorney Joseph Rossi represented the woman, Churazzi, Gauta, Bondi and Caldone.

Churazzi and the woman were arrested last night at a downtown hotel by county detectives. Detective Chief George W. Murren praised his men today for the cooperation they had given city officers.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

CHICAGO, May 11.

Been looking at the great Chicago World's Fair, which opens two weeks from Saturday. I am the first "rube" to visit it. I know you will say, what's it all about and why don't they pay their teachers. Well, I am just like you about the teachers, but this fair is just an association, and it's not the city itself doing it.

Will Rogers

I do think it would be a generous thing if it did make any money and if the teachers hadn't been paid by then, to cut them in on it. This fair is a tremendous thing, it would take me a week to tell you about it.

It's exactly what everybody needs. People been sitting at home grouching at each other for three years. Now don't think we have outgrown the "fair" stage. In the days when we were a great nation we enjoyed 'em. Now you can see the whole thing for fifty cents, and the way this Roosevelt is going, by then we will have the fifty cents.

Yours, WILL.

Official State Flower Already in Scandal

HARRISBURG, May 11.—(AP.)—Only one week in "public office," and the mountain laurel, Pennsylvania's new state flower, is mixed up in a scandal.

It is charged that the laurel, instead of being the modest bloom most people think it is, is a "killer," a sort of public enemy No. 1 among the wild flowers.

Vernon K. Dayhoff, York's city director of parks and public property, makes the charge and dips into ancient history for proof. He insists:

"Even the honey which the wild bees gather from its flowers is known to have produced fatal illness."

Look at the celebrated "Retreat of the Ten Thousand," as recorded by Xenophon in his "Anabasis," he points out, quoting:

"'That honey they found near Trebizonde made them drunk—they couldn't stand up.'"

Even cattle know enough to let the laurel alone, he adds.

The Pinchots selected the laurel after two bills were laid on the Governor's desk by the Legislature. One urged the laurel, the other the wild honeysuckle.

"Ah, there's the flower—the wild honeysuckle," says Dayhoff, adding:

"It's found in all ordinary woodland, comes out before the warm weather brings out the poisonous snakes and it's graceful and cool!"

'Rich' Tax Delinquents Accused of Job Fraud

A charge that "wealthy" delinquent taxpayers of Sharpsburg are employing jobless men to work out their indebtedness to the borough, paying the men $1.50 to $2 a day and receiving credits of $4 a day, is to be investigated at a meeting of Sharpsburg Council next Wednesday.

The charge was made by Councilman John J. Lennon, who said some of the delinquents guilty of the practice were worth between $25,000 and $50,000.

He said the list includes 300 taxpayers of the borough able to pay. The privilege of working out their delinquent taxes was made for the benefit of unemployed residents.

MASS MEETING HERE SCORES NAZI FIRES

On the shelves of Carnegie Library today were 100 additional volumes, the gift of as many Jewish college students presented last night in Carnegie Music Hall at a meeting protesting the Nazi book-burning decree.

The protest was attended by more than 2,000 persons and was addressed by the city's leading educators and clergymen who sponsored the movement.

The burning of books, blacklisted by Hitler, was protested, and the action was condemnd as "a wicked and disgraceful manifestation of religious and racial hatred" in a resolution passed unanimously at the meeting in the name of the educational forces of Pittsburgh.

HITLER SCORED

Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute, presided. In his opening address he scored the action in Germany. He said:

"It is well that meetings should be held throughout the United States to protest this unjustifiable and inexcusable outrage."

A protest by Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology was read. It ended:

"The book burning is so irrational that I cannot but believe that those in authority will soon see its absurdity and the dangers into which their cruel prejudices will lead them."

Tribute to Jewish literature was paid by George B. Hatfield, of the University of Pittsburgh.

The Rev. J. J. Callahan, president of Duquesne University, referred to the book burning edict as a restriction of culture and a "modern disease."

SEMINARY HEAD SPEAKS

Declaring race hatred and race persecution was not a part of the creed he represented, Dr. J. A. Kelso, president of Western Theological Seminary, said:

"It is ridiculous to think that anything can be accomplished by the burning of books."

Keith Seward, professor of psychology at the Pennsylvania College for Women, described Nazi action as a rallying symbol of the political opportunist and referred to it as "the most convenient political football of the year." He said:

"If it were possible I would go before the Congress of the United States and ask the suspension of immigration laws to admit any or all of the Jews in Germany and invite them to share the freedom of this country such as it is."

Dr. A. H. Ballinger, of Pittsburgh Xenia Theological Seminary, said:

"There are some things a dictator cannot do. He cannot reverse the process of nature, nor control culture; nor can he render a country immune from word opinion."

Dr. John Ray Ewers, pastor of the East End Christian Church, called Hitler a "blatherskite" with "no brains" and charged he was welding the Nazi and the Communists which, combined with Russia, would be a menace to the peace of the world.

Rabbi Herman Hailperin, of the Tree of Life Congregation, presented the first of the 100 books—a Bible—to Ralph Munn, director of the library. The latter welcomed the books to the library where he said "prejudice was unknown and ideas were never censured."

Following the speaking program, the gowned students, on the stage during the ceremony, each presented the library with a book.

BRITON OUSTS HITLER WREATH

LONDON, May 11.—(AP.)—A wreath laid on the Cenotaph War Memorial by Chancellor Hitler's special envoy was removed today by a man who sped away with it in an automobile.

Clifford C. Sears, London resident, told newspapermen the man who took the wreath was his father, Capt. J. E. Sears, a prospective Labor candidate for Parliament for Southwest Saint Pancras. The son said his father had declared:

"I've done this as a deliberate protest aganst desecration of the Cenotaph by Hitler's hireling. It is also a protest against the brutal barbarism which at present exists in Germany."

Previously a man had torn a swastika emblem from the wreath and escaped.

Capt. Sears appeared at the Bow Street Police Court this afternoon to face a charge of larceny of the wreath. He was discharged under probation on the charge of stealing, but was fined 40 shillings ($7.80) for willful damage to the wreath.

100,000 STAGE PROTEST MARCH

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP.)—If Adolph Hitler's ears ring today he may blame the Jews of the City of New York.

They paraded 100,000 of them, protesting the German government's attitude toward members of their race, and 200,000 other men and women, of all races, watched from the curbs.

It was the parade of Jews; but an Irishman, Gen. John F. O'Ryan, was grand marshal. Another, Mayor John P. O'Brien, stood more than four hours on the City Hall steps as the long line passed in review.

CHICAGO, May 11.—(AP.)—More than 50,000 persons paraded to a mass meeting yesterday to protest the Hitler regime in Germany. Most of the Jewish business houses closed for the meeting.

Mushball Player Dies at Practice

Archibald Pugh, 25, of Imperial, fell dead last night during mushball practice in a field at Enlow, near Imperial, the Coroner's office reported. Dr. G. M. Sprowls pronounced him dead.

Pugh was employed by the State Highway Department. He leaves his widow and four children.

JUDGE DENIES WIFE DIVORCE

When a wife fails to show proper affection for her husband, she is not entitled to a divorce, according to Judge W. Heber Dithrich, in an opinion handed down in Common Pleas Court.

He said as much in refusing Blanche Diamond, 6313 Waldron street, a divorce from Louis Diamond, whom she had charged with cruel and barbarous treatment. The wife claims that her husband pulled her out of bed and kicked her. The husband, who contested the suit, said she refused to show him affection.

HIT-RUN DEATH VERDICT GUILTY

Joseph Rand, 30, of 5544 Bryant street, proprietor of the Atlas motion picture theater, Perrysville avenue and Charles street, was convicted of involuntary manslaughter yesterday by a jury in the Criminal Court of Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff. Rand was accused in connection with the death of Lawrence F. Sutton, Jr., 47, of 15 Courtwright street, killed by an automobile, January 26, at Brighton road and Woodlawn avenue.

Rand, taking the stand to make a denial, said the automobile he had been driving was stolen a few minutes before the accident, while he was in a drug store.

FAMOUS BOOKS LEFT IN ASHES BY NAZIS

BERLIN, May 11.—(AP.)—Only the ashes remained today of thousands of books by German and foreign authors, Americans included, which burned on pyres throughout the country last night.

The works of such Americans as Jack London, Franz Boas and Helen Keller were among the literature condemned as contrary to the new German spirit and heaped on the pyres by the cartload by students.

Dr. Joseph Goebbels, Nazi minister of public enlightenment, blessed the blaze on Opera square in Berlin. He said:

"The fire signals to the entire world that a new spirit has arisen in Germany. The period of Jewish intellectualism now has ended."

Rain almost disrupted the ceremony in Berlin. It began to fall as students were trucking the collected books to the pyre.

On Roemerberg Heights at Frankfort-On-Main, 15,000 saw the demonstration.

LONDON, May 11.—(AP.)—In the midst of a bitter Laborite attack in the Commons this afternoo on Chancellor Hitler's special envoy, Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, the accusation was made that he and other Nazis now in London are Fascist propagandists.

The venerable Socialist leader, George Lansbury, went so far as to charge that "the teachings of Fascism which these gentlemen are eager to express and to press is for the purpose of overthrowing this house and the constitution of the country."

BEER LICENSES AWAIT PARK'S RULING

ing place." How will the places newly started under the beer prosperity era fare under this clause?

County officials must figure out whether it is possible for a place which has just come into existence to have a reputation, good or otherwise.

Then there is the matter of padlocked speakeasies which may apply for beer licenses. There is nothing in the state law, officials say, to prevent the issuing of the state license, but also nothing to remove the existing padlock.

BEER AT BASEBALL GAMES?

Beer at baseball and football games looks doubtful now, unless legal talent can find a loophole for concessionaires. The law planly states that a retailer must sell beer in a room with at least 300 square feet of floor space.

These and other legal problems have been the subject of frequent conferences recently between Assistant County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank and representatives of the County Treasurer's office.

Fees to be collected from retailers of beer by the County Treasurer will include a filing fee of $10 which goes to the county, and license fees ranging from $75 to $300, depending on the population of the district where the retailer operates.

Distributors must pay the same filing fee, and $37.50 to $100 in licenses, depending on the district.

REVENUE FOR CITY

The license fees go to the cities, boroughs and first-class townships, only the revenue of the 29 second-class townships going into the county treasury. The state gets its revenue from a stamp tax of $1.24 a barrel on the brew.

Both retailers and distributors are required to post a $1,000 surety bond, which is forfeited if they are caught violating any of the laws pertaining to the sale of alcoholic liquors.

The surety companies, according to Anke, have shown no eagerness to get behind the beer license business. Some, he declared, have said that special precautions in regard to obtaining security will be taken because of a clause in the application which confesses judgment in case of a violation.

VIOLATION FORFEIT

This would simply mean that any beer parlor caught violating the law would forfeit $1,000 through its surety company without any delay or argument in court.

The drive of the city Weights and Measures Bureau against beer bottles with various labels as to the amount contained failed to disclose further violations yesterday, according to Chief Inspector John J. McParland.

The question of prosecutions on a dozen bottles already seized on the North Side will be taken up with the City Solicitor, he said.

School Leaders Praise Junior Patrol Program

Example for Chain Broadcasts Seen in Performance

The Junior Patrol program over WCAE, especially designed for children and to provide not only entertainment, but constructive information, has received the approval of educators and members of the radio committee of the Parent-Teachers' Association.

Mrs. P. N. Digby, one of the Parent-Teacher committee members assigned to formulate protests against radio programs designated as "harmful to children," commented on the program yesterday as follows:

"I thought it was constructive and at the same time very lovely. I feel the music and performances of the children were fine, and the introduction of the dialogue about science—explaining about the earthworm—fitted in perfectly. I feel if Pittsburgh stations provided such programs, we could get the national Parent-Teachers group to go after national programs and show them Pittsbugh as an example."

Miss Marjory Stewart, pioneer radio critic and teacher of radio culture, felt the program was:

"An interesting effort to make important things interesting to children. I particularly liked the dialogue between the children—explaining all about the earthworm. The music was obviously child-like, and as such should interest other children. And the children performed well.

"It was, minus jazz, a program that kept up with the times and at the same time omitted the academic element which may easily ruin a well-meaning effort to mix education and entertainment.

"We shall, however, have to come to children professionally trained for the radio to entertain children."

WHARF PROJECT UP TO BOARD

The city Planning Commission today was preparing to make a study of downtown waterfront improvement plans submitted to Council by a special committee.

At a hearing yesterday afternoon on the proposed improvement, Council ordered the commission to submit recommendations.

L. W. Monteverde, chairman of the special committee appointed several weeks ago by Council to draw up plans for a general downtown waterfront improvement program, reviewed the results of his committee's study. The estimated cost is set at $4,448,000.

The special committee has recommended that Council adopt the complete plan for waterfront improvement extending along the Allegheny River from Eleventh street and Duquesne way to and including the Point and along the Monongahela River from the Point to Ross and Water streets.

ILLINOIS SALES TAX VOIDED

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 11.—(Universal.)—Illinois' 3 per cent sales tax by which it was hoped to obtain $60,000,000 annually for relief and school purposes was declared unconstitutional yesterday by the State Supreme Court.

Merchants of the state will have the gigantic task of refunding to customers and patrons the tax which they have been collecting since April 1.

Principal basis for invalidating the law was the fact, according to the court, that it excluded from operations of the tax farmers selling their own products and the business of selling motor fuel at retail, thus violating the uniform requirements of the constitution.

Constables Seek Escaped Prisoner

Constables from the office of Alderman Luke Sullivan, 3404 Penn avenue, today were searching for Charles Renshaw, 23, of Lawrenceville, who escaped from Constable William Kessler while enroute to the County Jail last night.

Renshaw had been arrested on an assault and battery charge brought by Paul Blawtaus, 19, also of Lawrenceville.

MY OWN LIFE STORY :: By EVELYN NESBIT THAW

elevator can't run, we're trapped—"

We dashed out to the elevator and rang the bell. To our infinite relief the old elevator man and the car appeared. Hastily we went down to the street. The wind was howling and screaming about us. From the elevator man we learned that there was a terrible fire nearby.

It was one of the large hotels and, of course, the wind and the storm made the situation worse. All the fire apparatus of New York was on the scene. We drove in a closed carriage as near the fire as the police lines would permit.

There Stanford White left me while he approached the fire inside the lines. He stood with the Chief of Police on the steps of a nearby building watching the fire for a long time. I was sitting in the carriage alone and it seemed as though he would never come back.

Pair Followed

To my utter amazement, Thaw knew all these things—so he must have had us followed. All that time Thaw had been plotting and scheming about me and I hadn't known it.

"Now that you know it all, Harry," I said finally, "for heaven's sake, forget this matter. Put it out of your mind. Leave me in peace. And, remember, you have given me your word of honor not to tell anyone—especially my mother.

"I have tried to make you understand how I feel about it all. I do not want to marry you or anybody else. All I want is to regain my health and return to the stage.

"You say Stanford White has ruined my reputation in New York. What nonsense!"

"All his intimate friends know about it," said Thaw.

At sun-up I was still sitting in that salon, too exhausted to think. When breakfast was finally served, my mother appeared on the scene and looked at us in amazement. Thaw's eyes were red and swollen and I was the picture of utter exhaustion.

"What is wrong?" demanded my long-suffering mother.

"Oh, nothing," I answered. "We've had a quarrel, but it's all patched up now."

When I finally did get to bed, I couldn't sleep.

Why had I been so weak as to tell Harry this well-guarded secret? In some inexplicable manner I knew even then that I should never have told him, no matter how he persisted, no matter how long he kept questioning, no matter what the result.

At times Harry Thaw could be as quiet and sane as any person. He could make himself extremely agreeable, a pleasant companion, and he did possess that completely disarming smile which flashed suddenly over his face like the grin of an eager young schoolboy who has been given a long desired baseball.

Agony Begins

My long, endless agony began after that night. There was to be no peace of mind, no real happiness for me. Nevermore! All the natural gaiety and heart's-ease of youth was taken from my life from that day on. There was no escaping Thaw and my Fate.

For a time Thaw sank into a deep mental dejection.

"Now we can never marry because of your friend, Mr. White! The blackguard!"

He would say over and over.

"Don't call him that," I said one day.

"Why? Why not?" demanded Thaw.

"Because," I replied, "Stanford White is different. He is above other men. Don't compare him to other men!"

Then rage and fury possessed Thaw. His glaring eyes and convulsed face terrified me. What could I say? What could I do? I realized I could never hope to make him understand.

It was a difficult situation. I have never had any resentment against Stanford White. I could never bring myself to hate him. That first love could not be denied by me to myself and, believe me, the first love in a girl's life is of paramount importance. She never really gets over it, no matter what happens. In the days of the first Thaw trial I couldn't tell these things. They wouldn't let me in court, anyhow.

Sudden Rages

If, during a lunch or a dinner or a supper thereafter, Thaw happened to remember that remark of mine that "Stanford White was different and above other men," he would suddenly jump up, turn over the table, dash china, glassware and silver to the floor and rush from the room, leaving all the other people staring in open-mouthed astonishment. But the philosophical French people would shrug their shoulders, saying:

"C'est Harry Thaw. Il est fou."

I did everything possible to keep his mind off the subject, but no matter what we did or where we went, Thaw constantly brought it up. Everything, everywhere seemed to remind him of it. It became a monomania. Every time we passed or saw a pretty young girl, he would bite his knuckles and say:

"That's what you were like before you met White!"

I also told him about a flirtation with a young cartoonist, but that never seemed to bother him a bit. In fact, he brushed it lightly aside, as of no real consequence. All his bitterness, rage and hatred were concentrated on Stanford White.

Then Thaw broke his promise not to tell anyone. He went to see Elisabeth Marbury without telling me. On his knees before her, he sobbed out the whole story. She, too, felt sorry for him, but she advised Thaw to marry me and forget the whole matter.

I was terribly upset when I discovered what he had done.

"You have already broken your promise," I said.

TWEEDS FOR THE WEEK-END MOTOR TRIP ARE FASCINATING

WE ARE almost rivaling the English this year in our love of tweeds. And as a result, the fabric makers and dress designers have given us fascinating things. There is nothing that stands country life better, whatever the weather, and now that you'll be moving out of town, or at least planning on week-end trips to the mountains or countryside, it seems logical and delightful to consider them.

AT THE right is a swagger coat of string color tweed in a herringbone pattern worn over a matching cardigan shown below. With this a matching or contrasting skirt may be worn. An ensemble of this kind is excellent because of its adaptability. It may be worn all together if the day is coldish, or the cardigan may be replaced by a thin wool sweater or silk blouse if the day be mild. On the other hand the cardigan and skirt make a perfect suit for lounging about the country club. And the top coat can be effectively used to complete all sorts of casual costumes.

AT THE left is a full-length tweed top coat that may serve all the purposes of the other. It makes that extra coat that is invaluable and which everyone should have in her wardrobe. This one is a gold color with the wide brown and gold selvedge trimming the small collar and the front. The brown buttons carry out the brown note. A skirt may be worn with this, converting it into a suit. Tweeds and lots of bright sweaters and scarfs will give you endless pleasure.

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Stand By a Good Record And Be Proud of It

She saved her kisses—and now, what?

No, she isn't kicking because the boys flitted to some other flower when she wouldn't "be a good fellow"—though they did that, too.

What has Ona down is that the "one man" she dreamed of, and saved the kisses for, won't believe her when she tells him she never petted!

Dear Elsie:

Do you really think it pays to be good?

Maybe that seems a funny question, but I guess lots of girls wish they really knew the answer.

Janice's letter about petting set me thinking. I always felt just the way she does. Even when I first started going out with boys, I wouldn't let anyone pet me. I always felt that I wanted to save my kisses for just one man—the man I would really love some day.

I have gone out plenty, but not with the same fellow more than twice, because after they found they couldn't pet me they left me flat. Of course I felt disappointed and disgusted at that, but my conscience was clear, and I just put the blame on bad luck or bad company.

But that isn't what I am complaining about now. I am 20 now, and I am in love with a man who loves me. That sounds well and good. But here is where the trouble starts.

When I try to tell him that I never petted with anyone, he just says, "Don't tell me! Any girl can be petted!" Of course I know you'll probably say that if he loved me he would believe me. I am trying to be fair, though, and look at his side of the story. For from his side he is about right, though I hate to admit it.

IS DISAPPOINTED

Any girl that he took out has petted with him—that is, until he met me—if not the first time, at least the second time that she went out with him. Not that he's out to make any records. It is just that he didn't meet any who wouldn't pet. I know he isn't lying, because I happen to know the girls.

I know some one will write in and tell Janice she is right. Well, I hope she is, for her sake, and I hope she will find a fellow who will appreciate her and think more of her for it. As for me, I am not sorry that I can hold up my head and not be known as a "Hot Number"—but not being believed gets me down. I am not cynical about it. I am just disappointed and hurt.

What can I do to make this man see that I am different?

ONA.

STAND BY IDEALS

If I knew, I wouldn't tell you, youngster. For why should you have to prove your decency to the man you expect to marry? If he isn't fine enough in himself to recognize fineness when he meets it, then you and your ideals are in for a bad beating, Ona. And my advice would be—get going while the going is good. Marriage to a man who is always "prepared for the worst" is one of the meanest hot spots ever invented.

So—that for your King of Hearts! And now a word of advice to you. Aren't you a bit muddled about your own "niceness"? What are you nice for? Just to get a man? Or because you yourself enjoyed being fastidious—hated all the common pawing and necking? Do you really know? Better ask yourself a few questions and find out.

For if you don't know why you're being good, sister, or if you don't enjoy being good for its own sake, it's a cinch you won't be good long.

So stop worrying because you can't "prove" that you're decent, little girl. It's the other fellow who needs to worry because he's too coarse to appreciate that decency—and if you're a wise girl, you'll show that by your own indignation.

You've made a fine record. Stick by it! Be proud of it! Stand by your ideals, and start enjoying them, whether other people believe in them or not. They're the finest thing in life—and they're the only thing that will never let you down.

There are many trying problems in business life. Few positions are ideally pleasant in every way.

The most valuable lesson you can learn from business experience is to adjust yourself to the unpleasant, difficult angles. Such self-discipline will prove to be a priceless asset for the future.

Always do your own particular part of the routine cheerfully and with your best ability. Never waste time criticising how another person should do his.

Never quit any place in a huff. It is much wiser to tide over an unpleasantry, giving yourself time to consider. How you left your last "place" may matter when you are looking for another place.

How to Keep Well

Bad Posture a Cause of Frequent Ankle Sprains

During the winter months when pavements and roads are wet and slippery, sprained ankle is a common accident. Even when snow and ice have long disappeared sprained ankle continues to be an everyday occurance.

Dr. Copeland

Some persons seem to be susceptible to this accident. This may be explained by individual weakness of the muscles, joints and ligaments of the ankle. The accident may occur because of carelessness in walking, or the wearing of shoes with little support to the ankle. It is a common complaint of women who have weak ankles yet wear high heels because of the dictates of "Dame Fashion."

I am often asked what is the difference between a "wrench" and a "sprain." There is really no difference. A sprain is a wrenched joint caused by a sudden twist or pull. It is an extremely painful affliction. At times the pain is so severe that complete rest in bed is necesary for its relief.

A mild sprain may allow the individual to hobble about with the aid of a cane. Too often a more serious injury of the ankle is mistaken for a wrench or sprain. For example, a person may injure his ankle, complain of pain and ignore the accident. He calls it a sprain and continues to walk on the injured ankle. If neglected, permanent injury and deformity may occur.

Persistent pain in the ankle demands expert attention. Merely because you can move your ankle and stand on your foot does not mean that the bone is not broken. Whenever in doubt, an X-ray picture of the injured ankle should be taken.

If the X-ray picture shows no evidence of fracture or dislocation, you can be assured that you are suffering from a sprain. Support the ankle with adhesive plaster placed around the ankle. Do not constrict the ankle, and make sure that the circulation is not shut off.

In severe form of sprain, avoid the use of adhesive plaster and other supportive bandages until the swelling has entirely disappeared. Cold compresses relieve the pain and reduce the swelling.

If you are subject to wrenched ankle, I would suggest that you wear an elastic anklet. That may be made of leather or of rubber. Do not wear high heeled shoes. The shoe should be broad in the toe, straight on the inner sides, fit snugly in the arch, loose at the toe and have a low, broad heel.

Too many persons do not walk properly. When you walk, draw in your abdomen, hold your chest out, shoulders up and square, and chin straight forward. Relax as you walk, and above all, do not slouch. Bear in mind that sprained ankle and other complaints can often be traced to faulty posture.

Heart of a Wife

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Men Suspect That Madge Is Friend of Enemy

As the last word of pleading left my lips I felt as if every nerve in my body were stretched to the breaking point, and I think I realized what must have been the suffering of a person stretched upon a rack. Another twist of the screw and I could visualize myself as a demented thing, wildly screaming to heaven.

One question loomed terrifying before me. Would this man in the big maroon sedan, who had offered me a lift, be affected by my impassioned plea, or would he keep the mocking unbelief which had characterized his first reception of my story that I wished to trail the car in which Marion was imprisoned?

It was lucky for me, I think, that the man Tony in the back seat seized the opportunity again to voice his disapproval of me.

"I told you before it was a stall," he reiterated. "Better ditch this baby quick. She didn't hail us just for a ride, or for this baloney she's been handing you, Nick."

"That settles it!" Nick said explosively. "I think it's a stall, yes, but not the kind that's itching you. I think Babe, here, just wanted a good time this evening, which I'm sure going to give her a little later; but if it pleases her to throw a little movie stuff first, why, it's all right with me. And as for you, bozo, you'll eat it and like it. So go ahead. Tell me what you want first, only don't ask me for my gat, 'cause you won't get it. That's what Jerry put you up to spieling, wasn't it?"

A STRANGE NAME

He had slowed the car while I was talking, and just before he said the last words he stopped it, and took his hands from the wheel. And as he put his question his eyes flashed round to me and fairly bored into mine.

That he was used to reading faces, and surprising secrets from their owners as a result of this scrutiny, I was sure. Right thankful was I that I had no inkling of whom he meant by "Jerry," for I was miserably certain that I could not have concealed my knowledge from those keen eyes.

"Jerry?" I said incredulously. "I don't know what you mean. I never met anybody named Jerry."

"Sure of that, are you?" he queried; and from the back seat came a snort of disgust. Tony's, packed so full of venomous incredulity that I wondered how his associate in the front seat could remain unaffected by it.

"Absolutely," I reiterated, firmly. "And if by 'gat' you mean gun, I certainly shouldn't ask you to lend it to me. I wouldn't know how to use it, and I don't think I shall need one tonight, anyway."

OFFERS TO HELP

"Don't be too sure of that, Sister," Nick said. "You never know when you'll need a good gat. But I'm going to take your word on the Jerry thing. I don't usually go wrong on lamps, and if yours are lying just now, I'll have my best hat chopped up for hash."

"I'm going to do something else, too," he went on, with a little chuckle. "I'm going to give you a break on this movie stunt you've been spieling. But the devil help you if I find it's a stall. I'll paddle you with a two-inch scantling for making a monkey out of me."

"But I'm telling the truth," I persisted, stubbornly.

"Sure you are," he said with the indulgence one gives a child. "So go ahead, and spiel what it is you want me to do."

"I don't know what I'll want you to do when we catch up to the car," I said. "That will not have to be determined now. Right now the important thing is to find the way the car went. Oh," as we swung around a curve, "here's a corner! Will you turn to the right here, and then stop and let me out for a minute?"

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Removing Entries

The sacrifice of a card that would otherwise win a trick in order to remove an entry for a long and established suit is known among Bridge players as the Deschapelles Coup, in honor of the great Frenchman who first applied it to the older game of Whist. The play is a beautiful one, and occasions for its use occur frequently. Unfortunately many of these are not recognized by the players at the time. Many otherwise skillful players could, if they only knew it, save many a game and rubber by turning to their own use the skill and brilliancy of the great Frenchman.

I saw a splendid use of this play in a recent rubber in which I held the North hand.

South, Dealer.

South	West	North	East
1 N.T.	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
2 N.T.	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
3 N.T.	Pass	Pass	Pass

The contract of three no-trump probably should not have been undertaken by South, but, as a matter of fact, it required a brilliant play to defeat it. The Opening lead was the heart 6 by West, which East won. Now, a return of a heart would have permitted my partner to go game easily. East, however, was too fine a player to make such a routine play. He held three diamonds and therefore felt that if the menace of the spade entry were eliminated he could reasonably hope to stop the diamond suit—in fact, he was sure of it, unless all four diamonds not in sight were in my partner's hand.

The sacrifice of a trick with the King of spades, which otherwise would have won, was a small price to pay for preventing the winning of 3 diamond tricks with Dummy's cards. East, therefore, to the second trick, returned the spade King, and the contract, instead of being made as it otherwise would have been, was defeated 2 tricks. South, of course, attempted to establish the diamonds, but a player skillful enough and farseeing enough to sacrifice a spade King is, of course, intelligent enough to retain the diamond Ace until the third round of the suit.

Today's Question

North	South
♠AKQJ87	♠965
♡AK96	♡Q
◇—	◇AJ8654
♣643	♣AKQ

North	South
1 ♠	3 ◇
3 ♠	4 ◇
4 N.T.	5 N.T.
7 ♠	Pass

South's three-diamond bid is justified on account of his diamond length and the extra values of the two Queens and the Knave over 3 honor-tricks. There is no need for North to bid more than three spades in response, and his four-heart bid over four diamonds is extremely strong. South's four-spade bid affirms secondary support in that suit, so that all that Declarer need know is whether or not his partner holds two Aces. He bids four no-trump to find out, and upon receiving the response of five no-trump, can go straight to seven.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

At 59th, Park Avenue
Dips down, and there are slums;
At Battery Park there is a crew
Of dreamy, listless bums.
And so the glamor peters out;
The glory has its fringes
Where people live in want and doubt,

And sullen Hunger cringes.
Yet, when I, too, have had my time
Along the Great White Way,
And joined these birds without a dime—
A washout, as they say—
I'll still insist (though all is gone:
My dough, my cars, my show place)
Though leading almost no place.

Overheard

One of the better Retorts Swelegant was this eavesdropped repartee.

"I can't figure that phony, at all. Every time I see him talking to you—he tries to make you believe he likes you. But when you're not looking—he starts using his hammer."

"I know," was the indifferent reply, "but what he don't know yet—is that my anvil has worn out plenty of hammers."

You Mean a Speck!

"That stingy guy you wrote about," says Anonymous, "who is tighter than Kate Smith's garter, is so small, Walter, that if you wanted to put him on the spot—you'd have to go looking for a period!"

Familiar Ring

It might have been Ring Lardner's boy, John, who covered the Hunter College show at the Opera House the other day. At any rate, the report stated that after the affair someone remarked that the song "Buttercup" was a great strain.

(Which is what Harry Rosenthal, the pianist, once said)

"Then why do you do it?" someone is supposed to have niftied.

(Which is what Ring Lardner replied when Rosenthal said it).

"Save it"—means put out the lights . . . "Hit 'em with a rifle"—put them on . . . "Strike it"—remove scenery . . . "Blimp" is a camera booth . . . "Sink"—to synchonize . . . "Put a silk on"—diffuse a lamp . . . "Break that broad's neck!"—Tilt an arc lamp . . . "Pep up that broad!"—make a lamp hotter.

Merciless Truth

It probably belongs to George Bernard Shaw or some graybeard, but what does it matter? to wit:

Gosh, Yes!

And Elliot Grennard can remember all the way back when "May all your children be acrobats!" was a curse, not a prayer.

Add Retorts Swelegant

When Catherine of Russia was asked why she didn't create schools, she snarled:

"If Russians knew how to read, they would write me off!"

William James in refusing an invitation from his famous brother, Henry, said:

"I play with boys who cuss and swear!"

When Joan of Arc was asked by a sceptic what sort of language her "Voices" spoke to her, Joan swiftied:

Quiteso, Quiteso

A group of merchants, brokers and their wives were gathered at an apartment the other night. Some of them wanted to know why it was that the various columnists escaped being gossiped about by each other.

"They don't escape gossiping, at all," we replied. All of them write about each other scandalously. They realize, though, that in all fights somebody has to come out a little dirtier."

Which reminded us of Bert Savoy's and Jay Brennan's act. Savoy, the best of the female impersonators (before he was struck by lightning), best summed up discreation. Brennan would say:

"Margie is a very good friend of yours, isn't she?"

"She HAS to be!" shrieked Savoy, "I know too much about her!"

F.D.R. Report On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Highlights of President Roosevelt's "report" to the nation on his work during the two months of his incumbency, and of his contemplated plans for the immediate future, are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. The pictures were taken in the Oval Room of the White House while the President was addressing his audience of millions over the radio.

Striking pictures of all of principals in the sensational Peggy McMath kidnaping case, come from Harwich, Mass. Peggy is shown restored to her parents, and there are pictures of the Buck brothers, Kenneth and Cyril, as they are held in $100,000 bail each for trial. Cyril gives a talk in which he tries to exonerate himself. The Globe Trotter supplies details.

Thrilling pictures show the running of the Fifty-ninth Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs. The final scene of the home stretch, with jockeys of Head Play and Broker's Tip trying to "rough house" each other, supplies one of the most sensational pictures ever presented on the screen.

Another close and exciting finish was that of the boat race between Pennsylvania and Yale at Derby, Conn. Yale flashes over the line in an unexpected burst of speed, to win by one-fifth of a second.

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Between the performances of "Pigeons and People" in the Nixon Theater, George M. Cohan, author and star, has been looking for the old Pittsburgh that he once knew. Closely buttoned up in a blue ulster he stood on Liberty avenue and gazed pensively across at the old site of the old Academy. Twenty minutes later he stood on Penn avenue and gazed across at the old site of the old Duquesne Theater.

The man of 800 songs and 80 plays, who has graduated from the brisk wisecracker into a comedian of infinite whimsy, has a heart that is full of rich memories. When he was one of the "Four Cohans," and later when he was the flag-waving star of his own shows, he knew these places and they are associated with his earliest triumphs.

Mr. Seibel

Which sounds as if he were centuries old, but he is the youngest man born in 1878—appropriately on July Fourth and providentially at Providence.

He has put several lifetimes of hard work into his stage career of nearly half a century, for he went on as a boy prodigy, playing the violin at the mature age of eight. His father, Jerry J. Cohan, used to say the boy's long suit was "riding a donkey in the street parade."

JERRY COHAN'S BOOK

There's a little book written by Jerry J. Cohan, called "Poems and Sketches," and printed in a limited edition of 499 copies. I have copy No. 416, presented by the author to the late Charles M. Bregg, the well-known critic.

Jerry tells many things about his young hopeful. "George was a popular boy composer and song writer at a very early age." He ground out popular melodies and catchy lyrics at 14 and has kept it up ever since. "Over There" displaced "Tipperary" as a marching song in the war. Paternal pride shines through the closing words Jerry wrote about 1911 of his boy George: "His work now is more pretentious."

The gossoon has been anything and everything on the stage—actor, author, composer, manager, stagehand, violinist, drum major, salesman, press agent, editor, trick dancer, columnist, librettist, lyric writer and music publisher. And he still refuses to be classified or put into a strait-jacket. If enough people tell him he's a fine comedian, he may try "Hamlet."

POET OF THE CIRCUS

His first appearance was in a border melodrama called "Daniel Boone." Capt. Jack Crawford, the "Poet Scout," who was a close friend of the late J. Ed Lislie, another old-time Pittsburgh critic, was the presiding genius of that production, which seems to have been a tent show, as Crawford, a little later, was running a circus. Young George sold photographs and peddled song-books between the acts. He knew the wild animals, learned the ways of the cowboys and swapped wampum with the Indians.

Then between 17 and 23 he wrote 150 one-act plays for the vaudeville tours of his family circle, the Four Cohans.

This is the sort of education that has made him what he is—a philosopher of the footlights, with a sure stage technique either as author or actor, and a knowledge of human nature which he turns into most delightful entertainment in "Pigeons and People" at the Nixon.

Besides, say Paul McGrath and the other 10 members of the company, he's the most genial of all men on the stage or off.

Loew's United Artists PENN Starts TOMORROW

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

IN THE past year, the most sensational leap in show business was made by Jack Pearl, the Baron Munchausen of the air. A great comedian who had been buffeted around in Shubert shows for a long time, Jack was with us in the last Follies that Ziegfeld did. He worked like a doggie and, although he received $1,750 a week, he wasn't particularly happy in the show.

Ziegfeld, always a tough manager on comedians, made Jack's life miserable during the early months of the show. As time went on, however, it suddenly dawned on Ziegfeld that he had uncovered a great comic in Pearl. He became very fond of the excitable little man and his plans for the next Follies definitely included Jack as the star comedian. These plans were still in the formative stage when Flo died.

When I left on my trip, Jack wasn't what you might term a howling success. Picture house engagements weren't bringing the salary Jack had anticipated and while he had signed a contract for the air, he had still to prove his ability in that direction.

Today, after a lapse of slightly more than seven months, they tell me that Jack Pearl is dragging down about $8,000 weekly on his vaudeville tour. He has signed a film contract for five pictures that will bring him $100,000 for the first and a higher amount for each of the next four. His radio contract for next season will net him about $5,000 a week.

Fantastic figures these—but it tickles me silly to be able to print them. Jack is a plain, easy going and home-loving person. He is devoted to the wife who adores him, and he has slaved through the years to provide his family with the best.

I know of no one in the theatrical profession who deserves success more than he. . . .

SPEAKING of theatrical successes, permit me to call your attention to "One Sunday Afternoon," the play at the Forty-eighth Street Theater, that missed the Pulitzer Prize by one vote. This is not only the best play I've seen since my return to Broadway; it's the most enjoyable evening I've spent in the theater in a couple of years.

"One Sunday Afternoon" is a play of the "Lightnin' " type. It is homely in theme and terrifically honest in its appeal. And like "Lightnin'," it has in its leading role a grand actor who was unknown on Broadway when the show opened—and is now the talk of the town.

This chap's name is Lloyd Nolan, and he gives a performance that I have rarely seen equaled anywhere. I don't know whether the movies have signed him yet, but I do know that the company that grabs him has a star of the first magnitude on its hands.

These are hazardous days in the theater. Had it opened here four or five years ago, "One Sunday Afternoon" would have been a sure-fire bet for a couple of seasons on Broadway and would have earned a fortune for all concerned. Today, splendid as it is, the show must struggle along and hope for the best.

If you can get around to it, I urge you to see "One Sunday Afternoon." And paste the name of Lloyd Nolan in your hat. He's going to be a movie star, the poor fellow . . .

"I SEE by this morning's column," writes B. C., "that you are up to your old trick of rapping the fortune tellers and mediums.

"By what right do you set yourself up as a critic of those who earn their livelihood by a knowledge of the future? Who are you to say that we are taking money from gullible people? From whence comes the colossal nerve that you display on so many occasions?

"To show you how wrong you can be, I am going to prove something to you. It will open your eyes and, if it will help you to be a little more charitable toward those of us who are blessed with second sight, I will feel amply repaid.

"This letter is written on Friday, May 5th. Gaze upon the postmark on the envelope and you will see that it reads Saturday, around seven A. M. By the time you get this, then, the winner of the Kentucky Derby will have been Kerry Patch. He will win by slightly more than a length on a muddy track.

"Now do you believe?" . . .

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Paul Kelly, who will be seen as leading man, opposite Lenore Ulric, in "Hard-Boiled Angel," when that new comedy comes to the Nixon Monday, for an engagement limited to three days, has alternated between the legitimate stage and screen, and also has acted in vaudeville. He has even played Shakespeare, with Robert Mantell, and stock, for Chester Wallace. His first screen experience was in support of Lillian Walker, Clara Kimball Young, John Bunny and their contempraries in the old Vitagraph Company. Later stage service found him in "Seventeen," and "Penrod," with Helen Hayes, "Honors Are Even" and "Up the Ladder," in which Doris Kenyon appeared. After a while he spent another year in pictures. His present season's jobs have included parts in the Theater Guild's "The Pure in Heart," and the Ben Hecht-Gene Fowler play, "The Great Magoo." They didn't go far, but it was not the fault of Kelly—or any other actor. Seats for "Hard-Boiled Angel" are now on sale.

"Just Married," a farce by Anne Nichols, was presented in the Washington School auditorium, Mt. Lebanon, by the South Hills Community Players, who will repeat the play tonight, Friday and Saturday nights. This organization, not many months old, is proceeding with its ambitious plans to establish a permanent community theater in the South Hills. Already it has social-studio quarters, "The Loft," in Washington road, Mt. Lebanon, and has the matter of incorporation in the hands of its legal adviser, George P. Kountz. With "Just Married" on the stage, it will next take up production of "The Queen's Husband," which will be presented in June.

The Bacchanalians, student group of Carnegie Tech, will give their second annual dramatic production Friday night in the Pitt Theater. They will be seen in "Over the Coals," a revue wrought entirely by students, from writing to costuming, staging and acting. Girls as well as boys will have parts and there will be a dancing chorus of 12 co-eds. Another performance, primarily for students, with some seats available to the public, will be given Saturday night.

Bothered by a troublesome tooth, Ina Claire had to step out of the lead of "Biography" recently and her understudy, Ruth Weston, had a chance to play the part. A number of folks who had their eyes on her found the result so satisfactory that the brief test likely will turn to her advantage later.

Garbo Wants Gilbert in Her Film

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, May 11.—Since the return of Greta Garbo, there has been developing a sub-rosa drama that should capture the fancy both of Hollywood and of you powerful fans out there.

La Garbo wants Jack Gilbert to be her leading man in "Queen Christina."

Whether the Swedish sphinx is moved by sentiment or showmanship, none is prepared to say. If Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer were to reunite the screen lovers of those box office smashes, "Flesh and the Devil," "Love" and "A Woman of Affairs," the fans would be sure to flock to the theater

But Jack is through at M-G-M. Cold business dictates that the studio use an actor whom they can cash in on.

And to this verdict I'm afraid there's no appeal. Cold business rules these days. Still, it is a romantic idea.

One night, during a performance, a man fell asleep in the front row. He was direct center and the company couldn't keep their eyes off him.

Finally, the outraged Barrymore strode over to a sofa, snatched up a pillow and tossed it at the offender. A voice of distilled contempt exclaimed:

"There, maybe you'll be more comfortable!"

Harry Cohn objects to the signing of Constance Cummings for the Gilbert Miller picture, but on this occasion he'll probably give in. Mr. Miller's contract, they'll tell you, gives him the right to choose the leading woman. Incidentally, Cohn sails on the Conte Di Savoia, May 25, to supervise the London-made film. Miller only directs.

On her final day at Paramount (she'll come back there, of course, in the fall), Marlene Dietrich wore a neatly cut man's black suit and a black beret. She lunched with Josef von Sternberg, Rouben Mamoulian and Mercedes De Acosta.

Spring has brought that restless feeling to the stars. Franchot Tone is moving into a new house in Beverly Hills, Leila Hyams plans to sell her Malibu cottage while George Raft has joined the trek to the beach. He finds Malibu very lonely.

"I like restaurants and shows," he tells me. "I'm not the fellow to go from house to house. It's too far away from things down there."

Until Charles MacArthur gets back from Europe, and she can make permanent living plans, Helen Hayes is staying at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel and letting her mother, Mrs. Catherine Brown, take care of daughter, Mary . . . Dolores Del Rio has gone to Palm Springs for a few days. Her mother went along but shortly will leave to spend the summer in Mexico City . . . Despite the doctor's advice to stay quiet, Boots Mallory was at the Beverly Wilshire with Cy Bartlett . . . Jeanette Loff and Charles Furthmann, Joan Bennett and Gene Markey, and many others, were dancing to Gus Arnheim's music . . . And Howard Green and George Landi carried their party to the Club Ballyhoo for the last show.

Merchant's Body Taken From River

WHEELING, W. Va., May 11.—(AP.)—Believed by police to have been slain, the body of Harley Thomas, 43, of Parkersburg, was taken from the Ohio River at Kirkman's Landing. His skull was fractured and the neck and one arm were broken. There was no money in the pockets. He had sold a store a short time before his disappearance and was last seen in a restaurant at Bridgeport, O., February 3.

Gallitzin Bridge Approved by P. S. C.

HARRISBURG, May 11.—(AP.)—The Public Service Commission has approved a plan to build a bridge costing $38,100 at Gallitzin. The plan submitted by the Pennsylvania Railroad, the borough and Cambria County, calls for a span with a clearance of 21 feet, a highway of 20 feet and two five-foot sidewalks. Property damages are estimated at $8,000. The railroad was directed to complete the bridge by December 31.

Ethel Lost Quite A Lot of Fat

Fooled Her Friends

"Every time I went out one of my friends would say to me, 'Why, Ethel you're getting fat'—until I got tired hearing it. Now they say, 'Ethel, you sure look a lot thinner.' I have lost quite a lot of fat with Kruschen." Ethel Kerr, Provo, Utah. (Dec. 12, 1932).

To lose fat and at the same time gain in physical attractiveness and feel spirited and youthful, take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning.

A jar that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle at any drug store in the world, but be sure and get Kruschen Salts, the SAFE way to reduce wide hips, prominent front and double chin and again feel the joy of living—money back if dissatisfied after this first jar.

'SHANTYTOWN' UP TO DATE

It is the general impression that "Shantytown," which houses 350 unemployed men in the shadow of Old St. Patrick's Church, is just a village of shacks. In one sense of the term this is a fact but, although, not known to many, the men who live in "Shantytown" have many modern conveniences.

Something over two years ago Father Cox expended $1,000 on the sanitation of this little community.

Incidentally were it not for the aid of Mayor John S. Herron, there would be no "Shantytown" today. Two years ago the City Building Department ordered the railroad company, on whose property the village is constructed, to remove all of these little homes, claiming that they did not meet with the building code. Mayor Herron, then a member of Council, used his influence and the orders were not carried out.

Father Cox has started another successful week in his drive for Sun-Telegraph subscriptions. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

CHARLEROI, Pa., May 11.—(AP.)—Between 400 and 500 men employed in the Isabella mine of the Weirton Coal Company are on strike. They demand a pay increase and changed working conditions. The mine recently went on a six-day-a-week basis after operating four and five days a week.

Officials said no effort will be made to run the mine until the differences are adjusted.

BISHOP'S TROTH WINS BLESSING

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., May 11.—(AP.)—Archbishop Aftimios Ofiesh's marriage to Marion Namey, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., in defiance of Eastern Orthodox Catholic Church canons demanding celibacy in the clergy, today had the blessing of two of the three bishops of the Holy Synod of the Syrian Orthodox Church in America.

The marriage here almost two weeks ago caused a controversy in the church.

The secretary of the Holy Synod, the Rev. Boris Burden, of New York, who led the opposition, contended the archbishop unfrocked himself by his marriage in violation of church law.

Bishop Gnatus, of Washington, sent the blessing today. He said he spoke also for Bishop Joseph, of New Jersey.

GLACIER PRIEST, PARTY SAIL

SEATTLE, May 11.—(AP.)—Father Bernard R. Hubbard, the "Glacier Priest," sailed from here yesterday for his sixth successive yearly expedition into Alaska's volcanic regions, hoping to "meet a volcano in eruption."

Accompanied by Prof. Rod Chisholm, of the University of San Francisco; Edgar Levin, a student and George Peterson, an Aleutian Islands trapper, he sailed for Unimak Island, in the Aleutians. He explained:

"With all this earthquake activity in Alaska, there are bound to be repercussions up there in those volcanic regions."

Big Week for Spitters. | Buc Speed Dazes Babe.
Faber Scores 250th Win. | Blacklist Enters Golf.
Quinn Under 23 Pilots. | Title to Cross Ocean.

726 GAMES WON BY MOIST-BALL VETS

IT'S QUITE A week for the three surviving spitball pitchers in the major leagues. Only a short while back there was a general inclination to count out the venerable trio, but during the last few days the old boys again have been brought prominently to the fore. When Urban Faber, of the White Sox, was given credit for a win in a game he finished for Milt Gaston against the Red Sox, he registered the two hundred and fiftieth victory of his big league career. Burleigh Grimes, of the Cubs, followed up a shutout victory over the Reds by holding the Braves to two runs, and Jack Quinn, shifting from the Dodgers to Donie Bush's Reds, made his first appearance under the twenty-third manager and the thirteenth club he has served in eight different leagues.

Urban Faber

Faber was the second of the trio to reach the 250 mark in victories. He has lost 206 games. Grimes has won 265 and lost 201, and Quinn has won 211 and lost 179. During their long careers, the three moist-ball survivors, whose ages total 130 years, with each soon to celebrate another birthday anniversary, have won 726 games against 586 defeats in the majors, a percentage of .553.

WHILE IT IS true that some recruits starting out in the major leagues hit a mile above their heads, it is also true that others fail to show their actual worth at first because they bear down too hard. The latest exhibit in the latter class in Ervin Fox, Detroit's new outfielder, who has developed large callouses on both hands.

The explanation is that Fox, over-anxious to make good, grips his bat so tightly that the callouses resulted. Manager Bucky Harris observes that no matter how capable a rookie may be, he is bound to tie himself into a knot when he starts in the big leagues. They all do it, and it takes some longer than others to become relaxed.

A SAD NOTE followed the reunion of the old-time Phillies when Stoney McLinn received a letter from Lew Richie, Quaker pitcher from 1906 to 1909, explaining his absence with the information that he has been in a state sanitorium at South Mountain, Franklin County, Pa., for six years, fighting tuberculosis.

Richie asked particularly about Lew Moren, of Pittsburgh, the original knuckleballer, who pitched for the Phils at the same time, and who resides here quietly now, completely divorced from baseball. Richie will be made an honorary member of the Old-Time Phillies, an organization soon to be formed.

THERE MAY BE room for debate as to where the National League leadership lies in other departments, but if you didn't know it already you could take it from Babe Herman that in the matter of speed the Pirates are off by themselves. And if they win the pennant, it's speed that will do it for them, according to the Cub slugger. "That's where the Pirates have it on the rest of the clubs in this league," said Babe. "Speed! There isn't a slow man in the regular lineup, and there are eight speeders when this young Hal Finney is catching. It's the fastest team in the loop. The Pirates get that extra base that we or the other clubs don't get. It may be just a long single to us, but it's a double for any of those fellows. They're all fast—the Waners, Lindstrom, Vaughan, Traynor, Piet, Suhr—the whole lineup from top to bottom.

Babe Herman

"THAT'S WHERE THEY get the breaks," Herman continued. "Where the rest of us are on first, going to third on a hit, those fellows usually are on second to start with, and from there to the plate it's just a breeze for them on any kind of blow. I guess they just run and keep on running.

"The Pirates get that extra break on a smash because they always run for the plate, regardless of the base from which they start. They're all fellows who play the game with speed, gauge their pace by a quick glance at the ball and how it's being handled, and keep on going. Sure, they're caught at it often, but more frequently they're not. And when they get away with it, they win."

THOUGH TWO FORMER White Sox have been sent to the minors, in Benny Tate and Gregory Mulleavy, the Red Sox still have on their roster no fewer than eight former members of the Pale Hose. These are Business Manager Eddie Collins, Scout Ernie Johnson and Players Bob Weiland, Bob Fothergill, Bob Seeds, Johnny Watwood, Smead Jolley and Johnny Hodapp.

Also there are three ex-Cubs on the list in Coach Tom Daly, Barney Friberg and Johnny Welch, and to add to the general Chicago flavor, Manager Marty McManus is a Windy City product and Gordon McNaughton, rookie pitcher, is a graduate of Chicago Loyola.

GOLF NOW HAS its blacklist. Some unscrupulous members of certain clubs in New York State built up a small-time racket to take advantage of the financial situation. Knowing that they would not be pressed to pay up as quickly at present as in normal times, they indebted themselves up to their ears for dues, house charges, shop service, refreshments, etc., and then jumped out and joined another club, leaving their bills unpaid. There they pulled the same thing over again. The practice grew until the Westchester Golf Association determined to put a stop to it. Now each member club is asked to give the association the names of all members who have resigned or have been dismissed while owing the club money. The names and the amounts of indebtedness are filed away for reference when the defaulting member tries to join another club. Then he either pays up or he doesn't get in. As a double check, all member clubs have been directed to include in their application blanks two new questions. One is "To what clubs do you now belong?" and the other is "Of what clubs have you been a member during the last five years?"

IN A POST-MORTEM on the recent tournament in which the world amateur 18.1 balkline billiard championship was brought to the United States for the first time by Edgar T. Appleby, cue critics find that Edmund Soussa, of Egypt, and Theodore Moons, of Belgium, who finished in a tie for second place with Francis S. Appleby, did everything better than Edgar except win games.

Edgar lost only one match, while each of his nearest rivals dropped two. But both Soussa and Moons scored more total points, played fewer innings, had higher grand averages and turned in high runs that established new American records. The grand average of the winning Appleby was only 7.23, whereas Soussa turned in a new record of 11.11 to supplant the 9.82 set by Francis Appleby in 1929.

COACH JOHN LAW, former Notre Dame guard and captain, has the Sing Sing football squad out for spring practice, and an observer remarks that this is one case of over-emphasis that the gridiron performers will have to overlook.

Kid Chocolate

Attention also is called to the fact that Coach Law has the largest scouting staff in the world rounding up new material for him. It's a staff of 17,000 men—the New York Police Department.

IT SEEMS THAT the world featherweight fistic championship is booked for a trip across the Atlantic Ocean, no matter who wins the title fight in New York tomorrow night between Kid Chocolate, the present holder, and Seaman Watson, the challenger. It is expected that if Watson wins, very strong inducements for a later New York or Chicago match will be required to keep him from rushing right back to England to cash in on the title and the resultant home popularity. And now it develops that Chocolate, though understood to be signed for a couple of subsequent bouts in New York, insists on making a European tour. Luis Gutierrez, his manager, tried to talk him out of it, but gave in when Chocolate threatened to make the trip alone, if necessary, and tentative matches for the Keed have been lined up with Jack (Kid) Berg in London, Jose Giraneo in Madrid and Kid Francis in Milan, with the added possibility that he will meet Al Brown, bantamweight champion, in Paris.

UNION MENTOR REMAINS ON FACULTY

By JULIUS LEVIN.

W. H. (Foxy) Miller, for 15 years director of athletics and head football and basketball coach at Turtle Creek Union High School, has decided to forsake the athletic field to devote his attention to teaching at the valley school, it was learned today.

Foxy Miller

Miller, it was reported from reliable sources, had rejected a contract calling for a big reduction in salary and rather than accept the terms, decided to confine his activities to teaching.

The popular Turtle Creek mentor has enjoyed considerable success at the valley school, where he has been coaching since 1917, the year in which he was graduated from the University of Pittsburgh, where he starred in football under the coaching of Glenn S. (Pop) Warner. He was on the freshman team in 1914 and a regular on the varsity eleven in 1915, 1916 and 1917.

Turtle Creek Union High has made rapid strides in athletics under the guiding hand of Miller. His football teams, with few exceptions, have ranked with the greatest scholastic elevens ever turned out in this section. The school is a member of the class AA division, of the W. P. I. A. L.

NEW COACH CERTAIN

W. W. Lantz, principal at Turtle Creek High, while admitting that Miller had not accepted terms to coach and that a successor probably would be named, said that no steps have been taken to fill the vacancy.

Inclement weather continued to play havoc with scholastic events. The third annual trade school track and field championship for the Fintex trophy, scheduled at Schenley High field this afternoon was called off on account of rain and wet grounds and will be staged next Thursday in conjunction with the annual novice meets.

The independent county school championship, slated for Dormont High School field yesterday, was postponed until next Monday. Eight schools will compete in this meet.

MEET POSTPONED

The elementary schools of Allegheny County will hold their annual track and field championships at the Schenley Oval next Wednesday. It was originally scheduled for tomorrow.

Ambridge High School, winner of the Class A football championship last fall, will meet Glassport, co-holder of the Class B championship, in a spring game at Ambridge Saturday.

The spring football game carded tonight between Scott High and Washington at North Braddock, has been postponed until next Tuesday, Johnny Reed, Scott High coach, announced this morning.

The tennis matches scheduled in the city and suburban divisions today as well as the grade school baseball games were washed out

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE EQUINE WONDER—Kincsem, credited with winning every one of the 54 races in which she started, was foaled in 1874 of Cambuscan and Water Nymph, English thoroughbreds. She spent her first two seasons on the tracks of Hungary, Austria and Germany. She won 10 races in 1876, 17 in 1877, 15 in 1878 and 12 in 1879. Other horses have had large numbers of consecutive victories to their credit, but none could equal Kincsem in never having tasted defeat.

WOLFF REAL GOLF VETERAN

By TOM BIRKS

Thirty-five years ago, Pittsburgh had as a member of its golf fraternity the first American-born professional in the sport. He was Charley Wolff, the present happy-go-lucky member of the Highland Country Club, now an amateur again by reinstatement.

Thirty-five years ago, John Moorhead, Jr., founder of Pittsburgh's first golf club, the Allegheny Country Club, situated in Allegheny just off California avenue, noticed a young caddie who seemed to have all the necessary rudiments that a golf professional should possess, appointed Wolff as assistant to Jack Young.

SERVED AT ALLEGHENY

At that particular time golf was a game in which only English and Scotch professionals were engaged. Wolff stayed at Allegheny for one year, then accepted a position as professional with the newly-formed Shields Country Club, and three days a week traveled to Edgewood Country Club to give lessons.

At that time the founders of Cambridge Springs golf course approached Wolff with a proposition to lay out a golf course, but terms could not be agreed upon, so the summer resort officials looked elsewhere for an architect.

The professionals were well paid in the gay nineties, Wolff receiving $2 a lesson for his work. The golf courses way back in the 90's were very crude. There were no sand traps, no rough and bunkers scattered over the course were the only hazards.

The fairways were very large and the greens did not have the velvety touch of today.

The balls were made of gutta-percha and the golf sticks were large and blunt and easily broken.

SONS FINE GOLFERS

Wolff, now a member of the Highland Country Club team, shoots consistent golf, despite the fact that the equipment used for breaking 70 is entirely different to that of his professional days.

Wolff's two sons, Regis and Charley, Jr., were both feature members of the University of Pittsburgh golf team last year.

Charley, Jr., has graduated, and Regis, who captained the team last year, expects to be back next year when he has caught up with his studies.

Joe Mazer Signs Lease To Operate Bowl

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

The Motor Square Garden boxing heads have taken over the Meyers Bowl arena in North Braddock and will operate it this summer in opposition to the Hickey Park and Greenlee Field arenas. The deal was closed late yesterday, Joe Mazer, promoter, and Jules Beck, matchmaker, signing a lease with Carl Baldridge, the owner.

The name of the plant will be changed from the Meyers Bowl to the North Braddock Bowl, and the first show will be held on May 31. The boxing commission has awarded the Bowl Wednesday nights with the privilege of staging any postponed shows on Fridays provided the Greenlee Field Club, which has Thursday nights, is not rained out. This means that the summer schedule so long as three clubs operate in the district will be as follows:

North Braddock Bowl—Wednesday nights, with Fridays for postponements in event Greenlee Field does not have a postponement from Thursday night. (Saturday night also available for postponements, but unlikely to be used.)

CROWDED SCHEDULE

On account of the crowded schedule, continued bad weather in any week will result in cancellation of some shows and full week postponement for others. There is a possibility that Greenlee Field will escape postponements by transferring its shows indoors to the Arena, on the North Side, on rainy nights. The Arena management and Greenlee Field have joined forces for the summer.

Matchmaker Beck plans to head East within a week or so to line up talent for his North Braddock shows. Unable to arrange for a suitable match, he has decided to forego what was to have been his final show of the indoor season at Motor Square Garden next Monday night. The Arena, however, will run three more indoor shows on the North Side. It runs tomorrow night, with three 10-round bouts; on Friday of next week, with Wesley Ramey and Harry Dublinsky in the main bout, and again on May 26.

The opening outdoor dates now are definitely set as folows:

Wednesday, May 31—Opening show at North Braddock Bowl.

Thursday, June 1—Vince Dundee vs. Frankie Goosby, Greenlee Field.

PIONEER BOXING BOWL

The Bowl is the pioneer large outdoor arena of the Pittsburgh district. It was constructed especially for boxing by the Meyers Brothers, Louis, the late Dr. S. I. and I. D. (Apples) Meyers, and was opened on May 22, 1929, with Benny Bass boxing Steve Smith in the main bout. During its first season it housed 19 shows, for a gross business of $100,000, or an average of better than $5,000 a show. Joe Dundee, Maxie Rosenbloom, the late Black Bill, Willie Davies, Buck McTiernan and other stars helped to make history that season.

Nineteen shows also made up the 1930 season at the Bowl, which was opened with Battling Battalino, then the featherweight champion, boxing Vic Burrone in the main bout. Jack (Kid) Berg, then the junior-lightweight champion, boxed Ray Kiser in the main bout of the opening show in 1931, when 18 professional shows and some amateur cards were offered. Jules Beck was matchmaker all three of these seasons, being replaced last year by Lew Raymond, who now replaces him at Greenlee Field.

CLOSED DOWN LAST YEAR

The 1932 season was disastrous for the Bowl. Facing keen competition and parlous times, it succumbed to the heavy strain and folded up after four shows. Tony Canzoneri, the lightweight champion, boxed Battling Gizzy in the main bout of the inaugural. Then a Jackie Fields-Ted Yarosz match fell through because of an injury to Fields. Gizzy and Wesley Ramey then fought, and, following a poor gate for a match involving Kid Chocolate, the featherweight champion, and Johnny Farr, the management called it quits for the year.

DUKES, W. VA. GOLFERS TIE

Staging a fine comeback after being shut out last Saturday by Pitt, the Duquesne University golf team battled to a 3-3 tie with West Virginia University's linksmen over the Stanton Heights course yesterday.

Capt. Francis Totten, of the Dukes, turned in the best medal score of the day's shooting, a fine 74. The summary:

Manning, West Virginia, defeated Walsh, Duquesne, 6 and 5.
Totten brothers, Duquesne, defeated Hoblitzler and Lowe, 4 and 3.

U.S.C. Grid Stars Sign With Boston

BOSTON, May 11.—(AP.)—The signing of two Southern California stars, Raymond Brown, a tackle, and Tony Jurich, end, was announced today by President George Marshall, of the Boston Braves professional football team.

Between Rounds

Jim McGirr is putting on a dozen amateur bouts at popular prices and admitting escorted women free in his Palisades arena in McKeesport tonight. Dutch Weir, of Duquesne, the new state heavyweight champion, meets John Petro, of the Monongahela Valley A. C., in the feature bout.

Joe Marcus and Paul Oger, who recently fought to a draw in Fairmont, W. Va., go to it there again tonight in an added eight-round battle. Sonny Jim McVey meets Ace Dobbins and Georgie Schlee, of the North Side, is in with Jimmy Reilly in a third eight-rounder.

Three of the best punchers to show here in recent months are on the card at the Arena tomorrow night in Johnny Datto, the Alabama Kid and Georgie Riley. Opposing them, in the order named, are Petey Sarron and Joe Ruggirozzi, club fighters, and Frankie Wallace, as slick a piece of boxing machinery as there is among the little fellows. All of these bouts are 10-rounders.

Riley worked out with Seaman Watson in New York until yesterday, the Seaman getting ready for his crack at Kid Chocolate's world featherweight title in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Jess Hoak, East Pittsburgh lightweight, who has been on the sidelines for a few years while working as a service station attendant, is in training and ready for a return to action under the management of Bob Todd. Hoak will be remembered as having fought Tiger Joe Randall, Tug Phillips, Young Rudy, Paul Oger, Jackie Murray, Walter Dickerson, Harry Taylor and others. Manager Todd may be reached at 712 Linden avenue, East Pittsburgh.

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Amateur bouts, McKeesport.

RELIEF HURLER EAGER TO WIN REGULAR JOB

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The artistic mound performances given by the Pirates' four starting pitchers—Heinie Meine, Larry French, Bill Swift and Waite Hoyt—have relegated to the background, at least temporarily, a sharpshooter who has more natural "stuff" than any member of the Buccaneer flinging corps.

The complimentary reference is to Leon Chagnon, deep-chested French-Canadian, whose slab exploits of last year plus his springtime form of this year, made him a standout among the Pittsburgh hurlers.

More than one Pirate regular would have applauded Manager Gibson had he selected Chagnon for the opening game of the season, so impressive was Leon in the preparatory season. Chagnon's fast-ball popped and his "hook" broke like Johnny Morrison's jughandle whenever he was called upon for duty.

GIBBY'S SMART MOVE

Gibby appears to have pulled a "fast one" even on some of his own stars when he gave Bill Swift the eleventh hour nomination. French was considered as the opening day pitcher, but the fact that Larry developed a bad cold about the time the team was leaving California apparently caused Gibson to look to Swift.

It is not the intention here to state that Chagnon is a better pitcher than Swift because he has more "stuff." The French-Canuck has had as much experience as Scranton Bill, but few hurlers are blessed with as much control as Bill displays when he goes to the slab.

LEON BIDES TIME

Chagnon, however, should not be discouraged. Gibson has a deeper appreciation than anybody else concerning the ability of the strong righthander and when the time is propitious he will call upon him. It would be unwise to break up the continuity of a foursome that pitched the Pirates onto the top position in a manner little short of sensational.

The Pirates were rained out in Boston yesterday. The third contest of their scheduled three-game series had to be postponed on account of the moisture. The decision was made in time to allow the Bucos to board an early train for New York.

Butler Golf Course, Bridle Path Open

Butler's golf course and riding academy, located in Buena Vista, Pa., in Elizabeth township, has added a number of new features for its guests this year.

The Butler course of 18 holes is rated one of the longest in this section, measuring 6,512 yards. It is laid out over rolling country and offers a stiff test of golf.

A seven-mile bridle path through scenic country has been laid out for the guests. Picnic grounds and playgrounds are available for the youngsters. A dance hall, capable of accomodating 5,000, has been erected.

Notre Dame Grid Star in Sanitarium

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 11.—(AP.)—Gilbert Gildea, of this city, end on the Notre Dame football squad, has been admitted for treatment to the same tuberculosis sanitarium in Wallingford where Albie Booth, former Yale star, recovered.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

ST. LOUIS, May 11.—By grapevine Marconigram I get it that Philadelphia history may repeat itself. You know, it was there Betsy Ross made the first edition of Old Glory, and now I understand Connie Mack is knitting himself an auctioneer's flag. As near as I can make out, Cornelius is ready to put Foxx, Cochrane, Grove and Earnshaw on the notion counter and sell 'em for whatever such nicknacks will bring.

Nick Altrock

Mr. Mack is somewhat abashed because they can't have Sunday baseball in Pennsylvania this year. So long as his stars have to play out of town on the Sabbath, he figures as how he might as well let 'em play on alien real estate week days, too, and collect a little cash for himself.

In a way, you can't blame him. If Philly fans can't support the A's in the manner to which they are accustomed, Connie can run his team through the divorce court and collect a nice parcel of alimony. It wouldn't be the first time. Mack broke up his million dollar club in 1915 and started all over building up a winner. But can Connie, at the age of 70, put another jigsaw puzzle together again?

INDIANS SHARE LEAGUE LEAD WITH YANKS

VETERAN JONES TURNS BACK CHAMPIONS

Associated Press.

Due to the strength of the Cleveland Indians and a couple other western clubs, the New York Yankees have surrendered their place of solitary splendor at the head of the American League standing for the first time in a few days over a year.

Cleveland, which held the lead for a few minutes last Sunday until the Yanks got back in the second game of a doubleheader, clambered up to share first place yesterday by beating the Boston Red Sox 4 to 2 while the World Champions were taking a 10-2 beating from the White Sox at Chicago. The situation might have been even worse for the Yanks but for a late rally by the St. Louis Browns which downed Washington 5-0 and kept the Senators from taking a clear lead in the close race.

ERRORS BEAT BOSTON

Yesterday's victory was something of a gift as an altered Cleveland lineup failed to produce more than six hits off Bob Weiland, Boston southpaw. Three errors by the Red Sox made up the difference in hitting.

The Yanks, meanwhile, couldn't do a thing with the canny offerings of Samuel Pond Jones, 40-year-old Chicago veteran. They garnered only six blows, while the Sox, led by Al Simmons, pinned Lefty Gomez's ears back with a blast of base hits, drove the slender southpaw to cover in the second inning and netted five runs in that frame.

Washington's trouble was the Senators' inability to score in a nifty mound duel between George Blaeholder and Earl Whitehill. It was a scoreless game for seven innings and after holding the Browns to two hits in that time, Whitehill blew in the eighth, allowed two doubles, two singles and two walks, and Heinie Manush tossed in an error that aided St. Louis in scoring all its five runs.

A'S WIN PAIR

Philadelphia's Athletics hit the comeback trail as they started against the slipping Detroit Tigers and moved into fifth place by taking both games of a doubleheader, 3-2 and 6-4.

Bad weather reduced the National League program to one doubleheader which saw the Cincinnati Reds wallop the tail-end Phillies twice and advance to fourth place with a .500 average. The scores were 10-7 and 4-3. Chuck Klein made a noble effort to stave off the defeats, walloping three home runs and batting in seven runs, but he couldn't match Cincinnati's six-run rally in the sixth inning of the opener nor Si Johnson's steady flinging in the nightcap.

as a result of the continued rains.

Two baseball and two football games made up yesterday's abbreviated card.

In a postponed W. P. I. A. L. game, the Dormont nine defeated Carnegie, 13 to 2 and Turtle Creek downed Shady Side Academy in a non-league tuzzle, 11 to 2.

New Brighton nosed out East Liverpool, 13 to 12.

The W. P. I. A. L. junior high school track and field championships will be staged at Duquesne on Saturday, May 20.

The Arnold School tennis and baseball teams will invade Ohio Saturday to meet the Western Reserve Academy teams. The teams will make the trip in automobiles.

Pie's Punch Promises Pirates Pennant

GOOD OL' CAP'N TRAYNOR HOT STUFF AGAIN THIS YEAR

After an off-season last year, when, in 135 games, he drove in only 68 runs against his yearly average of better than 100 and batted only .329, Pie Traynor, Pirates' third baseman and captain, is back with a vengeance this year. He is leading the club's hitters with a mark of .354, is tied with Gabby Hartnett, of the Cubs, for second place in base hits, with 28, one behind Chuck Klein, the leader, is going at his best clip in batting in runs and showing the old life in his fielding at third base. If it is true that as Traynor goes so go the Pirates—well, boy, order us those world series reservations right now. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

OUIMET'S GOLF

By FRANCIS OUIMET

Former National Amateur and Open Golf Champion.

As long ago as 1911, George Duncan, on an American golfing exhibition program, astounded Boston golf enthusiasts by the rapidity with which he played his shots. Duncan at the time was considered to be the most brilliant exponent of the game. His scoring was invariably spectacular, but the manner in which he executed the most difficult strokes was the only thing that drew the attention of the spectators. American players, and there were not a great many then, were in the habit of dilly-dallying over their shots. Countless waggles made their play seem painfully slow, and, when Heinrich Schmidt, a fine young amateur, from Massachusetts, played in the British amateur championship in 1912, his methods were so deliberate it annoyed not only opponents but those who followed him.

Francis Ouimet

However, it was Duncan, in my opinion, who was responsible for the speeding up of the play of American golfers. Then, in 1916, when Bobby Jones, a lad of 14, put in his appearance in major competition, he proved that a golfer could step up and hit a golf ball without wasting time. One can be careful and still get the desired results if he will but make himself hit the ball without delay.

DELAY COSTS STROKES

Now I am told Joe Tunresa has decided to slow down his play. Turnesa, as you know, is a very fine professional golfer, and his manner of hitting a ball is more comparable to a flash than anything else. Possibly he has been too quick and perhaps it has affected his game somewhat. After all, as competition runs, today a player merely has to make one serious mistake and he is out of the running. But I for one firmly believe fewer strokes are wasted by impulsive tactics than are those due to dilatory ones. Personally I have been accused by well-meaning friends of playing too quickly and thereby getting myself into difficulties as a result, but I never have felt my errors have been the result of fast playing.

As a youngster, I can remember watching the late Alex Smith in action and I was amazed at the quickness of his play on the putting greens. The day I happened to be watching, Alex was putting badly and I attributed his failure to too much haste. Later, when I got to know him, I asked him why it was he putted so quickly. His answer was brief and to the point.

If you ponder over a putt you begin to think of the possibilities of missing simple putts and nine times out of 10 you fail. I saw enough of Alex's putting later to realize he was a good putter and his system as a general rule works well.

MOST CHAMPIONS SPEEDY

You can go back over the records and with hardly an exception you will find the winners of championships for the most part have been players who were geared up to hit their ball without wasting much time over the shot at hand. Surely Bobby Jones and Gene Sarazen must be called speedy players, and certainly their methods have not been without success. To be sure, they understand their own play so thoroughly they can tell in an instant which club to use for the distance to be gained and their only thought is to look at the ball and hit it. They do not give themselves a chance to think of the possibility of distance.

To be able to play quickly one has to have confidence, and yet, in the case of Tommy Armour, there is the other angle. Tommy has plenty of confidence, but of late years he has shown a marked tendency toward slow play. When I first knew Tommy Armour he played quickly, but now he consumes plenty of time over his shots. He explains it all by saying it takes him a long time to get his feet placed firmly and the many waggles he performs are solely to get himself into a position that feels comfortable before he is ready to hit. Armour, of course, is an exceptional player and his case might contradict what I already have written, but there always is an exception to every rule, and he happens to be one.

Slow play tends to wear down the competitor in stiff play because he allows himself the opportunity of thinking of too many disturbing influences. If a trap happens to be between himself and the hole the longer he takes to play the more he thinks about that trap and more often than not he will end up in the bottom of it. And the chances are more than fair and if you eliminate the trap from your mind you will escape it. One way of doing this is to stand up to the ball and hit it before a poisonous thought creeps in to ruin the shot.

CANADA, CUBA DAVIS CUP PLAY OPENS

HOT SPRINGS, Va., May 11.—(AP.)—Gilbert Nunns, youngest member of Canada's Davis Cup team, and Dr. Jack Wright, Vancouver veteran, will carry the Dominion's colors in the singles matches today against the tennis stars of Cuba.

Wright, who has been a member of every Canadian Davis Cup team for 10 years will engage Ricardo Morales, Cuban captain who in private life is an architect, while Nunns will cross rackets with Lorenzo Nodarse, a student at the University of Havana.

Selection of Nunns for the singles competition instead of the veteran Davis Cup player, Marcel Rainville, of Montreal, caused surprise here, although the youthful Canadian star appeared in fine form in defeating Rainville yesterday in a practice round.

Rainville probably will be used for doubles competition only.

Completion of the first round of Davis Cup competition in the European zone yesterday saw the favored teams easily qualified for second round play with England and Italy still ranked as the teams to beat in the upper half of the draw and Germany, Japan, Australia and South Africa in the lower.

England is paired against Finland in the second round and Italy against Austria while Germany meets Holland, Japan plays Ireland, Australia plays Norway and South Africa goes against Switzerland.

VITELLI HURLS TWO-HIT FRAY FOR STOGIES

Two well-pitched games were turned in by Mid-Atlantic League hurlers yesterday, the best pitched one enabling the hurler's team to take the league lead.

By running his string of scoreless innings to 18, Vitelli, Wheeling's star pitcher, blanked Springfield with two hits, the Stogies winning 4 to 0. Vitelli fanned 11 batters. The victory put the Stogies in first place.

At Dayton, Lefty Schwenk turned back Johnstown with three hits as the Ducks won, 4 to 2. Schwenk was the first Dayton hurler to go the route.

Beckley beat Huntington in a slugfest, 11 to 8, at Beckley, while at Charleston, the champion Senators won their first game of the season, defeating Zanesville, 7 to 1.

SMALL FIELD EXPECTED FOR PREAKNESS

ONLY 10 MAY GO TO POST IN CLASSIC

BALTIMORE, May 11.—(AP.)—Only 10 of the Preakness candidates today appeared likely to face the barrier Saturday for the mile and three-sixteenth classic test for 3-year-olds at Pimlico.

Four of the first five in the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs last week were considered certain starters along with four more strong contenders.

In case of a wet track, the list may be increased to 12 with the addition of John E. Hughes' Silent Shot and the Weatley stable's Utopian. A fast track will keep the pair in their stalls.

E. R. Bradley's Broker's Tip and Mrs. Silas B. Mason's Head Play, who fought it out for the Derby with the former coming through for a narrow victory, headed the list of certain starters.

The W. R. Coe pair of Ladysman and Pomponius, who finished fourth and fifth at Churchill Downs, also were being groomed for the $25,000 added race.

KERRY PATCH SET

Other 3-year-olds who are certain to start in the Preakness are: Lee Rosenberg's Kerry Patch, Brookmeade stable's Inlander, Wheatley stable's De Valera, and Catawba stable's Mr. Khayyam.

Glen Riddle Farm's War Stripes and Adolphe Pons' Projectile were in doubt as starters. Still more doubtful were S. W. Labrot's Rush Hour, Tedlu stable's Euryalus and W. S. Kilmer's Dark Winter.

Sonny Workman and Johnny Bejshak will pilot Ladysman and Pomponious, respectively. Pete Walls will handle Mr. Khayyam. Louis Schafer will be up on Kerry Patch, Hanks Mills will guide De Valera and Duke Belezzi will ride Inlander. Johnny Gilbert will be aboard War Stripes if he runs.

TECH-GENEVA MEET OFF

By JESS CARVER

Rain washed out the Carnegie Tech-Geneva dual track and field meet scheduled for the Tartan Bowl for this afternoon. Assistant Graduate Manager Al Irwin, of Tech, and Director of Athletics Edgecomb, of Geneva, effected the postponement via telephone this morning.

The affair will be re-scheduled for a later date.

Pitt, better balanced than it has been in a number of years, is looking forward with more or less anticipation to the meet with Penn State here Saturday. For the first time since 1929, the Panthers appear to have a chance of beating the usually powerful Nittany Lions.

With any sort of a break, the Panthers would have beaten West Virginia last week, but John Valenti, who would have been good for at least a second place in the shot, failed to appear and the judges called a dead heat in one of the hurdle races, both of which cost the Panthers points. As it was, they lost only by a single marker.

D. O'LOUGHLIN, SNYDER WIN

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, powerful leader of the P. A. A. net squad, and Don Snyder, giant Greensburger and recent acquisition to the Winged Head ranks, are proud possessors of the Kibitzer Cup, symbolic of top honors of the men's doubles tourney that featured the annual smoker-supper of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association that began Tuesday evening and terminated last night.

The prized flagon has not yet been put into evidence by its designer and donor, Chairman Bob Schmertz, who is laid up witn a severe cold, but 'tis understood that it is an object of considerable magnificence and well worth the two excellent racquets which Snyder smashed in capturing it. The covered rectangles of the Pittsburgh Golf Club were the battle site.

The victors' final opponents were Frank Smith and Harry Wald, able Edgewood-Pitt array, and the verdict read 6-4, 6-3 as O'Loughlin struck mid-season form at the barrier and Snyder covered the starboard court to fine effect.

The winners eliminated the strong Westinghouse-Belmont coalition of Bill Clardy and Jim Patin, 6-3, 6-4, in the semi-finals, while Smith and Wald accounted for Bill Spindler, clever Stantonian, and Tick Tichvinsky, another accomplished Westinghouser, 7-9, 6-1, 6-2, in the same round.

They lashed cars up a mountainside TO MAKE THIS BETTER FUEL

PICKED for torture, fifteen automobiles were put through some of the most grueling tests ever devised last August, while a score of noted engineers watched their agonies. The men represented leading automobile and refining companies; they had gathered in the Allegheny Mountains to pool their knowledge in one great experiment. The tests confirmed ATLANTIC'S belief in the supreme quality of ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH. But they also gave clues for further improving this fine fuel. For months, ATLANTIC has been carrying on research, in the laboratory and on the road. And it has succeeded in producing a new fuel . . . so radically better that only by trying it can you learn what an amazing advance has been achieved.

Thank you for telling us:

"IT IS POWERFULLY BETTER!"

Telephones ring. Letters arrive with every mail. Wires carry the message: "The NEW ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH is powerfully better."

We thought you would welcome a fuel of such outstanding quality . . . but we had no idea your response would assume the proportions it did. We want to thank you, not only for telling us, but for telling your friends.

You need have no hesitancy about recommending the NEW WHITE FLASH. It is, we sincerely believe, better on every point than any motor fuel ever offered, at or near its price. And you may be assured it will continue to lead in quality!

STOCKS SOAR IN FEVERISH TRADING

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP.)—Financial markets swept upward afresh today, with trading hitting the feverish pace of last week.

The jump of 2 to 3 cents a bushel in the wheat market, in response to the bullish government crop report, fanned the speculative flames in shares, but the advance was somewhat restrained by active profit-taking. Bonds were also higher. Cotton gained about $1 a bale, and other principal staples were mostly higher, including raw sugar, which had receded yesterday.

Motors were traded in large volume, with General Motors, Chrysler and Nash all up about a point.

Final enactment of the farm relief-inflation bill, together with continued reports of expanding business and gains in employment, kept speculative enthusiasm at a high pitch. While moderate strength developed in European currencies, as against the dollar, foreign exchange fluctuations were more restrained, and the share and staple markets evidently no longer needed the indications of declining dollars to keep prices on the advance.

Reports that there had been a delay in signing the tariff truce failed to darken the outlook for improvement in international financial and business affairs, so far as Wall street was concerned, and active buying continued in such issues as American and Foreign Power and International Telephone, which have large investments in many parts of the world. National Distillers was strong in response to the relaxation of restrictions governing the sale of medicinal liquor.

While some fears had been expressed that the length of time taken to enact the farm relief bill would prevent crop restrictions this year, it was pointed out that adverse weather evidently had accomplished that already in such staples as wheat and cotton, which provided a good setting for the inauguration of the new government program to raise prices.

GRAINS ROCKET IN BUYING RUSH

CHICAGO, May 11.—(AP.)—Faced by sensationally bullish crop figures, plus enactment of the Roosevelt agriculture and inflation bill, grain prices jumped skyward early today.

The government crop report was construed by traders as indicating the nearest a failure that wheat in this country had ever known at this season. Opening 1⅞ to 2½ cents higher, wheat afterward rose further. Corn started 1⅛ to 2 cents up, and subsequently held near the initial limits.

More than 3 cents a bushel soaring of wheat was soon witnessed, with corn up more than 2 cents. Public participation in purchasing broadened as prices buoyantly advanced.

Corn displayed independent strength, with December corn hovering around 50 cents owing to new heavy rains over practically all of the corn belt to the Missouri River.

Provisions rose with hog values and with grain. All deliveries of lard reached new high price records for the season.

MARKET RISING ON FAITH, NOT STATISTICS

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Probably the outstanding point about the stock market now is that it has definitely passed out of the dollar-panic stage and into a stage of business optimism.

The first uprush was chiefly caused by "inflation" fears or hopes. It was based on a money-holders' panic. Now I think many people have either forgotten their fear of reduced purchasing power for dollars, or doubt that any monetary inflation will occur.

They are buying stocks because stocks are going up, and stocks are going up because they are buying them. The old speculative circle is working again. Doubtless it will continue to work as long as nothing happens which is important enough to shake public confidence.

BALLYHOO RESENTED

Even the most bullish operators probably do not like the obvious ballyhoo which has developed of late.

Anyone who is a real friend of the market would advise that it should go a little slower. Some would even say that a good reaction would insure a better advance. But this has become a big broad affair in the past two weeks and evidently is not going to do what any group wants it to.

For example, I know of a large amount of the best sort of selling by shrewd and powerful interests, but the market has waded right through it.

SHAKEOUT LIKELY

It therefore seems reasonably clear that as long as the published business news continues good, the buying will continue to come in and the buyers will hold their positions.

I do think, however, that regardless of what your opinion of the market is, or where it will be a year from now, you should be prepared for a severe shakeout one of these days. That is just common sense.

You know and I know that our American psychology is such that we overdo moves of this sort and that is a psychological market—not a statistical one.

TACTICS SUGGESTED

The moral to these thoughts is that if you are a day-by-day trader, you should now take small profits and limit losses closely.

If you desire to buy for the so-called "intermediate moves," you should now await for that long-delayed reaction. If you are a long-pull investor you should pay no attention to the market leaders of the hour or day, but redouble the care and caution with which you analyze earning prospects.

Most stocks now look high on an earnings basis. If you buy anything it must be either (1) as a bet on a psychological wave or (2) as an expression of faith that prospects of general business recovery are such that earnings will eventually come up to justify prices.

The Flapper's Daughter

CHAPTER XLIV.

The three people in the living room stood in a little group, listening. It was a minute or two before Edna spoke.

"Why, no, Mr. Collins," she said slowly, "I don't believe I'll go."

Then, after another little pause, she went on:

"In a way I'd like to go. You know Thomas Burke says in some book of his that 'the only worthwhile people are those who are beginning again.' I think it would be fun to go down there and watch you begin again in a new place—but I think I'll stay here."

"Why, Edna?—Why don't you want to go? It's a perfect climate and a swell town. You'd like it—and I wouldn't know how to get along without you. You've been like a partner for years. I need you."

"Do you?" Edna's voice seemed to break on a short dry sob. "Well, I'm not going. You can say it's because office work is like being somebody's cook: the only variety in it is a change of employers."

"I see." There was a note in Mr. Collins' voice that Sharlie had not heard there before. "You're tired of working for me. Well, that settles it then."

After that there was dead silence in the room for a moment. Then there came the sound of light quick footsteps crossing the floor and the door of the kitchen opened and closed, making its familiar squeaking noise as it swung on its hinges.

GOES INTO KITCHEN

Mr. Collins came into the living room, still holding his cigar and his lighter. He took his seat in the chair that stood in the bay window and he seemed to listen as Eldon Dunn talked about the business depression and the way it had affected the railroads.

After a minute or two Sharlie went out into the dining room and began to stack the pie plates and coffee cups on a large japanned tray. When she carried it into the kitchen Edna was standing at the window, with her back to the room, looking out into the sleet that fell in straight gray curtains. Sharlie saw her drop a crumpled ball of handkerchief into the pocket of her dress before she turned around to her.

"I'll wash—and you wipe, Sharlie," she said and began to scrape the bits of cold veal and dressing and mashed potato from the plates that stood on the drain boards. Her voice was thick and shaky as if she had been crying, and her eyes were red.

The door of the kitchen opened and Mr. Collins came in. He did not seem to notice Sharlie who was standing beside the white table, unloading her tray. He walked across to the sink and stood close to Edna, looking down at her, and she went on scraping dishes as if she did not know he was there.

PLEADS WITH EDNA

"What's the matter with you, really?" he asked her. "Don't tell me that you're quitting me cold like this just because you hanker for a new person to work for. Are you in love with someone? Someone you don't want to leave?" It struck Sharlie all at once that he was much more like a lover pleading his case than a businessman asking his secretary to stay on the job. "You've always said you'd like to travel—see new places. Now that I give you the chance to do that very thing you turn me down."

He was very serious as he pleaded with her. He raised one of his hands and laid it on her blue cotton shoulder, turning her toward him. "Come on—Tell me what's the matter with you," he said. "You said a minute ago that you thought it would be fun to go down there and start over with me. You know it would be—We've always had a good time putting deals over together, you and I, haven't we?—Remember how we cleaned up in Miami in 1925—Remember—Edna?"

He put his other hand under her chin, lifting her face toward his. "Why, you couldn't work for anybody else any more than I could get along with anybody else in my office. When you're away on your vacation every year I go haywire, trying to get along with other stenographers. You suit me, and nobody else does. That's about the size of it."

Sharlie had never seen this side of him before. He had always been light and bantering with her as if he were talking to a pretty child who couldn't understand what he said unless he made it very simple and trivial. Even last night when he had asked her to marry him he had grinned at her as he leaned across the table in the hotel and said, "I'm crazy about you, Sharlie...Do you think you'd like to marry me?"

REALIZES TRUTH

And when she had told him that she would like to think things over before she answered him he had not pleaded with her as he was pleading now with Edna to go down to Phoenix and work in his office.

The truth flashed across her mind all at once.

She stood a second longer beside the table. Then she pushed open the door of the kitchen and went into the dining room.

Dodie was standing in the living room doorway, between the portieres that hung there. Her eyes were as round and bright as blue glass marbles, and she looked as if every muscle and nerve in her body were straining as she tried to hear what was being said in the kitchen.

"What's happening out there?" she whispered as Sharlie came across the room to her.

Sharlie let out a little sound that was not quite a laugh. "Well, it looks to me as if Mr. Collins is making love to Edna," she said. "At any rate, he all but has his arms around her, and he's begging her to go down to Arizona to work for him. If he begged me to marry him like that I'd be certain that he loves the ground I walk on—and I'm very far from being certain of it at present. I don't know whether he knows it or not, but if he isn't crazy about Edna Ballinger I'm Greta Garbo!"

GIRLS LEFT HOME

She went into the living room and Dodie followed her. "Well, Sharlie, you certainly are taking it calmly," she said with a glare of indignation in her eyes. She switched around and stood looking out through the dining room at the closed door of the kitchen for an instant. "I don't believe he's making love to her at all! The man's not insane. He must know his mind and he's here today because he wants you to marry him, isn't he? Well, then——" She walked across the dining room with an air of strong determination, humming loudly as she went. She pushed open the door of the kitchen and stepped inside.

Sharlie did not have an opportunity to talk to Mr. Collins until late that night. Two seconds after Dodie walked into the kitchen the Hanaberrys telephoned and asked the Dunns and Mr. Collins to come across the street to have a game of poker with them.

"I'll be very glad to go," Mr. Collins said when Dodie told him about the invitation.

"Why don't you girls make some sandwiches and things," Dodie asked, coming into the kitchen where Sharlie and Edna were at work once more. "And I'll bring everybody over here for supper along about seven."

The door of the flat closed after her and the two men, and Sharlie and Edna were left alone.

STATE TROOPS IN THE EAST TEXAS OIL FIELDS

The Conservation Commission was created to regulate oil production. In Texas, state troops were sent to curb overproduction. Oklahoma, for instance, produced about 11,000,000 barrels of oil illigally and California about 10,000,000 barrels, resulting in loss to oil operators who observed the limitation regulations. BINDING

After Woodcuts of Just Amman, 1562.

The invention of printing is the impost for the spreading and expanding of civilization from the chaos of the transition into the new epoch known as "Renaissance." It widened intellectual boundaries, opened new fields of industry, encouraged manufacture, advanced commerce and with it influenced the growth of cities and towns breaking down Feudalism (see issues of May 9, 6, 4), bringing to a close medieval times. DIAGRAM OF WESTINGHOUSE AUTOMATIC AIR BRAKE SYSTEM

Above, left: The engineer's brake valve on the locomotive. Above, right: The car brake with a plain tripple valve on the first car is shown. The feed valve holds constant air pressure in the brake pipe throughout the train. This causes the brakes to be released and the air to be stored in the auxiliary reservoirs of each car.

If the engineer cuts off the air supply with his valve, the brake pipe pressure is reduced and the slide valves release the air stored in the auxiliary reservoirs toward the brake cylinders. The pistons in the brake cylinders are connected by the brake gears to the brake shoes (left) and press them against each wheel of the train. This brake is called automatic, because it will apply immediately, when the air pipe breaks or the train parts accidentally. George Westinghouse's invention was a great contribution to the efficiency and safety of transportation by rail. (Transportation.)

Cotton, linen, woodpulp may be bleached by saturating them (after preliminary treatment) with a solution of sodium hypochlorite (Na O Cl) and then passing them into a bath of diluted mineral acid, which liberates hypochlorous acid (HClO), the bleaching agent, and chlorine. The excess of chlorine is removed by a solution of sodium sulphite, called "antichlor." (Chemistry.)

The Professor's Class Room Complex

It has been the habit of distinguished European savants to tell us what's wrong with America and to flee home before we could break out of the butterfly nets.

That's all right and even. For American scientists go to Europe for vacations and wind up in debates. It's just too bad, but a professor can't help scolding.

That's due to his class room complex. He does all the talking and his pupils must raise a hand before answering back. If that mitt goes up too many times the students are handcuffed.

The result is that an old college desk sergeant regards the rest of us as pupils. Having never lost an argument in the lecture room he comes to look upon the world as just one big campus.

Give him one ear to grab and he will start a university. Give him the other ear and he will endow it. He is a roving monitor and his pillow is a book. He is out to mould the works into scientific shape and he can't refrain from learned heckling.

He seeks to reform banking, diplomacy, depressions, settle labor strikes and smooth out the wrinkles of war. All his equations listen reasonably. But when you try to put them into practical operation they don't work any better than a hired farmhand with boils.

The problems of the day are usually decided with a nod or a grunt. We move fast. We have never seen or heard a college professor who could explain anything in less than three hours. By that time, we are out to lunch and on our way back. The boat has sailed.

We intended to go up to Columbia this June for a summer course in something. But after listening to a Harvard scolder explain the ingredients of the monetary system we think we will go fishing.

There is a time for tutoring and there is a time for relaxation. We don't want too many reasons with our definitions.

And one thing the professor hasn't realized since 1914. And that is, facts have been divorced from figures.

The Moral of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's Life

Almost two score letters have been received by the Sun-Telegraph about the life story of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, now appearing in this newspaper.

Some of them are bitterly condemnatory; others thank us profusely. We are particularly grateful to one Oakmont mother who caught the spirit of this feature with such appreciative exactness. "I am glad," she writes, "that at this particular time, when there are so few restraining influences, someone shows our young people that flouting moral standards and conventions brings inevitable despair and disgrace."

This is not a fiction story. Life created this melodrama, one of the outstanding of all ages, the chief roles being taken by Pittsburgh people. It points an eloquent moral:

WRONG IS NEVER RIGHT AND CAN NEVER END HAPPILY.

Because this set of events is so gilded with glamor and dramatic high spots, the conclusion is the more obvious. It proves that even vast wealth, great beauty, immortal genius cannot cross the deadlines of civilized society's conventions without the preordained aftermaths of grief, regret and disaster.

A beautiful Pittsburgh girl was flattered by the interest of Stanford White. She believed that surely this instance was "unusual." Here was a great man. It must be that the homely teachings and warnings to girls could not apply in such a case.

With what result?

Misery, tragedy, notoriety. Every life that touched the life of the girl who thought she was in love and that "love sanctified everything" has been scarred and seared, and her own life has been a nightmare of disillusionment and despair. Her first misdeed stalked her through the heights and the depths; she has never been able to elude its shadows, growing blacker and bigger through the years.

It is a story that should be told, this story of the relentless vengeance of a single sin, the consequences of which multiplied and spread. If ever such a situation started with unique advantages this one did; yet the persistent penalties have been exacted just the same.

There are no exceptions. The weak and tempted are inclined to tell themselves, "Oh, yes, I know all that—but it doesn't apply to ME—this is all different."

If ever a case was "different" it was the case of Evelyn Nesbit, indescribably beautiful, pursued by men of millions and fame, a talented girl whose opportunities were almost limitless. Yet the inexorable natural laws of right and wrong ignored all but the eternal, essential fundamentals.

Her magnetic charm is gone. There are no more millions at her command. She is merely an aging woman with a well-known past and no known future. She realizes her mistakes now. But now it is too late. One moment after defying constituted morality is too late.

Sin cannot be glossed over by circumstances, cannot be lived down by time. Evelyn Nesbit's confessions write the proof of this truth in letters of fire.

Criticism of Judges

Chicago Lawyers Are Franker Than Those of Pittsburgh in Expressing Adverse Opinions.

Because we criticized the judges of the Quarter Sessions Court for showing leniency to violators of election laws, the Allegheny County Bar Association adopted a resolution last Friday, condemning the Sun-Telegraph.

This was to be expected, for the Bar Association is notoriously servile to the judges.

Only 48 persons are reported to have voted on the resolution out of a membership of more than a thousand.

We regard it as highly gratifying, moreover, that the resolution of condemnation was passed by a majority of only four votes. This indicates a growing spirit of fearlessness and independence, a growing demand for a higher standard of conduct on the bench.

The Bar Association, by the way, recommended that the judges do the very things in election law cases that we criticized them for not doing.

The Allegheny County Bar Association has a long way to go before it will attain the fearlessness and independence of the Chicago Bar Association.

Twenty-one judges of the Circuit Court, one of the Probate Court and one of the Superior Court are to be elected in Chicago on June 5, and the Bar Association of that city, through its board of managers, has issued a report on the qualifications of the candidates. It finds ten Republicans and seven Democratic nominees unfit. AMONG THOSE REJECTED ARE SEVEN SITTING JUDGES.

Two of the judges rejected have been on the bench a long time, but are characterized as "not satisfactory to the bar." One has "demonstrated his unfitness." Another is "fairly qualified," but his usefulness is "impaired by a lack of patience in the court room." Still another is declared to have legal ability, and to have made "notable contributions to the advance of civil and criminal jurisprudence," but "in our opinion he is unfit for judicial office."

Candidates who are not now on the bench are similarly criticized.

Allegheny County will soon have a judicial election, too, with three places on the Common Pleas Court bench and two on the County Court bench to be filled.

Can anyone imagine the Allegheny County Bar Association challenging the qualifications of any of the candidates?

Racketeers' Defiance

The Bombing of an East End Home Should Arouse the People to the Seriousness of the Menace.

Charles Martin, Republican chairman of the Tenth Ward, reports that three racketeers visited him Monday night and asked him to use his influence to gain protection for them from the administration of Mayor John S. Herron. Martin refused.

Pittsburgh's safety depends on the manner in which Mayor Herron meets the threat.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Design for Loving

Women have written volumes of advice on how to make a husband happy, but no man has ever run a column on how to make a wife happy. Perhaps a man figures that just having his shoes in the closet and his hat on the hall rack ought to make any reasonable woman happy.

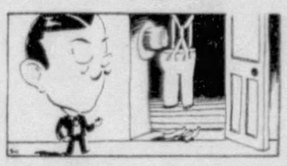
Some men are just naturally emotional panhandlers, who are always looking for a "handout" of affection from one girl after another, but don't want a life-job as the lover of any woman.



Divorce, says Reno Ruth, is no answer to the problem of marriage. It is merely the eraser which wipes the slate clean—and exposes it to a couple of brand new problems.

When a woman deceives the man she loves, she always feels a twinge of conscience. But when a man deceives the woman he loves, he merely feels annoyed at her for putting him to the trouble of having to invent an alibi.

To a woman, first love comes but once. But, to a man, every new love is the "first love" while it lasts—and all the others before it seem just like "practice."

The average man's idea of a well-balanced office force is a staff of two or three women who know how to do the work, plus one baby-faced reception clerk—who is particularly receptive to him.

Men claim to be fairer in the love-game than women. But who couldn't play fair when he holds better cards, knows exactly how to call all his opponent's little bluffs, and hasn't anything much at stake, anyhow?

Isn't It So?

In youth and beauty wisdom is but rare.

A faint heart never won a stock market profit.

We often do good, in order that we may do evil with immunity.

Many a temptation comes to us in fine, gay colors that are only skin deep.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 11.—One of the midnight havens kinked in the Broadway roar is a tiny chili parlor, bright with red trimmings and stuffed with the simple cordiality of a Chaucerian era. From after theater until 2 a. m. it is in genial pandemonium with more diverse celebraties than any other spot in town.

Among signatures on its guest register are Paul Whiteman, Robert Sherwood, William Gaxton, Meredith Nicholson, Joe Cook, Harold Ross, Ogden Nash, Arthur Hopkins and other topnotchers in various fields. In the least anticipated place, more confidences are exchanged than at the clubs.

The cafe is conducted by Mrs. Lee, a buxom matron, and her comely daughter, Dorothea. The service is leisurely, but the frijoles, enciladas and tamales worth waiting for. The wandering drunk finds all tables reserved. Two Broadway hit plays, three novels and a jigsaw puzzle revival incubated there.

Over pannikins of steaming chili are the moods and dolors once so familiar among the well-polished benches of the old-time rathskeller. A gentleman last evening was discussing Boccaccio. A departing star tucked a pat of hamburger in her purse for her Peke. Broadway, around the corner, seemed far away.

The best known chili parlor of another generation was, of course, Joel's, shouldering the Metropolitan Opera. While such intellectuals as Ben DeCasseres, Edwin Markham and Carlos Fornaro were frequenters it had a rakehell glamour. Jetsam madams, twitching hop-heads and gristle-hearted panderers of the Broadway night drifted in. The last time I saw Joel Rinaldo, incidentally, he was rocking on the porch of a sequestered Brooklyn home reading Wordsworth, of all people.

* * *

Then there was Madam Laloy's, also in the neighborhood. She mixed the aperitifs and cashiered in a tiny cage. Her son, Gaston, acted as maitre de hotel. Dinner avec vin ordinaire was 65 cents. An horrendous mechanical piano was in constant din but the low-ceiled place was stuffed with that engaging quality, "atmosphere." I met three of the warmest friends I have there. Customers drank decently, with a continental sense of rite. Gaston was killed in the war, I heard, and Mama Laloy returned to her native village in Provence.

But it was at Lorber's when I was newly pupped on Broadway I got my first peep at culture—or so it seemed. Lamb chops were served with red and white panties slipped over the ends. Here I also made virgin experiment in sipping cointreau. The two so emboldened me I breezed over to a corner table where Caruso was dining and asked for his autograph. It was given with a graciousness I never forgot.

Thingumabobs: Al Smith's 11 desk telephones includes one gold plated . . . Julian Mason, managing editor, does imitations of Smith . . . Ward Morehouse flew to Utah to visit the birthplace of Maud Adams . . . The biggest New York real estate profits during the depression have been made by "Daddy" Browning . . . Mrs. William Thaw II conducts a swank dress shop on Madison avenue . . . Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., sat on the platform with Hitler at a political meeting . . . Max Reinhardt has been offered the job of staging spectacles in a giant beer hall for the Sutton Place area.

The Sealyham just catapulted through the swing door from the kitchen hell-for-leather, circled the apartment twice and narrowed his trail to a well-sized ring in the hall, yipping like a fox hound hitting the scent. I was just about to send for the dog catcher when I found the fool was chasing his nubbin of a tail.

Three stars—Lynn Fontanne, Blanche Bates and Holbrook Blinn—at various times tried to induce Buff Cobb Brody to join theatrical companies, but failed. Another daughter of a writing man, Florence Rice, had innumerable offers before she consented to appear in a play by her dad's crony, Ring Lardner. Such reflections being inspired in an observation of Hugh Walpole: "Children of writers shrink from the theater. They have lived too much in an atmosphere of illusion."

* * *

But Owen Davis solves the parental problem of knowing where a modern son is six nights a week. He writes a part for him in his plays. Thus the son is happy. An achievement, my masters, to be happy and get paid for it these days.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Life—a strange business!

What's it all about? Why'd we come? Where do we go from here?

How often you've asked these questions! Have you ever really stopped asking them in the deep places of your heart?

No answer.

Yet, still, you feel so sure there is an answer! Why?

Why should this strange certainty run, hard as steel, beneath the shifting sands of our despair?

Why are we so sure, against all evidence, that life is worth while?

Why do we know, even as we watch our bodies crumble, that we, ourselves, shall never crumble—that we shall go on and on, vaulting with young feet over our cradles and graves?

And sometimes there comes a Flash, quick and clear, when, for an instant, you seem to see—what? Afterwards, you cannot tell what; but for one timeless moment the curtain lifts, the darkness clears—and there before you lies the road you've always known, shining from star to star!

So, for an instant, you see the truth about yourself and Life. Then the shadows close around again. Again you fear and doubt and think this is the end.

Then, amazingly, you will stumble on some proof that other souls have had their flashes, too. Then it wasn't just an accident! You didn't just imagine it! They saw it, also! So it must be true. This isn't all. The road does go on!

And life has a new meaning, a new possibility. You begin looking and listening, peering into the eyes of strangers, probing into their words—searching for proof.

And finding it, perhaps, in some lovely passage like this from that great, hot, striding book, "Pageant"—G. B. Lancaster's book of Tasmania's prison colony days. Horrible. Beautiful. Pageant of Empire. Yet, strangely, almost shockingly, the pageant of your own soul—your secret killings; your hidden prayers!

How did anyone know of all that? Or of this? This flash, which came to you, standing by your mother's grave—which came to Jenny Comyn standing by the grave of her love. But what does any grave matter, if the road goes on! Listen!

"As she stood among the glowing tulips, there came to her one of those familiar moments when barriers thinned; when behind the barriers she felt that mysterious life, caught that sharp fleeting certainty of the ultimate meaning of this strain and confusion called living. Very still, hardly breathing, she knew you must keep then, or you frightened it, the spirit thing, so that it eluded you and was gone.

"Very still—and it came, the spirit thing, so serenely vast and your own little spark leap up in recognizing joy. Lives — such formless, brittle handfuls of nothing lives were; squeezed into such cranky, unmeaning shapes. Squeezed until the pith was out of them and the great Hand opened and dropped them again to earth. Squeezed—Yes, but the pith, the essential drop distilled when the great Hand squeezed! That remained. That was what lived behind the barrier.

"For one of those rare, tremendous moments which had stayed her all her life, Jenny grasped those beckoning hands behind the thinned barriers; saw their lit eyes, their triumphing laughter.

"Then the old brown hall was about her again, with stray gleams from the well-rubbed brasses, bosses of color from the glowing tulips, letters on the pierced silver tray."

Very still—

Oh, if we could only keep still enough; hush our noisy questioning; silence the complacent cackle of our conceit, and wait—and then—

Suddenly, the Flash!

Text for Today

Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved.—Acts, iv:12.

(Today's text is suggested by the Rev. C. J. Loehr, pastor, St. Paul's Lutheran Church, North Side.)

The President Makes a Speech

No Lack of Energy in HIS Methods.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH BEGINS CALMLY

Pictures tell more than words. These photographs of President Roosevelt making a speech will tell readers more about his character than can be told in 10 columns of words. What we SEE we KNOW and immediately understand.

What we hear or read carries information to the brain slowly.

The human brain has received impression through the eyes for millions of years, during the period of its evolution and far back in its animal ancestry. Language is more recent, reading is only of yesterday.

WORKING UP TO A CLIMAX

You see in these pictures the Roosevelt that carried 42 out of the 48 states last November and has been ceaselessly striving since his inauguration to make good his statement on taking the oath of office:

"I am prepared to recommend measures that a stricken nation may require . . . In the event of a critical national emergency, I shall not evade the clear course of duty. I shall ask Congress for the one remaining instrument to meet such a crisis—namely, a broad executive power to wage war against the emergency as great as the power that would be given to me if we were, in fact, invaded by a foreign foe."

PLENTY OF ENERGY HERE

Since then the President has asked, and Congress has given to him, powers EXTRAORDINARY. He has made new arrangements with the foreign countries that owe us ten thousand million dollars, and we shall learn presently what those arrangements were.

We changed the monetary system of the United States, permitting no individual to have any gold or gold certificates, compelling the return of all gold to the government Federal Reserve banks.

THE CLIMAX COMES — RELAXATION

The President has taken the steps necessary to increase the currency by "reflation," counteracting the lack of money, providing it in quantity sufficient to run the business of the country.

Here he is—study him and form your own opinion. You are CERTAIN of his sincerity and you hope earnestly for his success.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Pay your bills if you have the money at hand.

When bills are due the money no longer belongs to you.

You have no right to accumulate a surplus at other's expense, have you?

Many, today, are not to blame that they cannot pay their bills.

But if you can pay and don't, you are not honest to withhold it.

Perhaps you think the storekeeper is the only one who will suffer by your procrastination and you say "he must have money or he couldn't be running a store."

If you thought straight you would see that the storekeeper is at the mercy of those who buy goods and often is ruined by those who might pay if they choose but they don't choose to pay.

Then what about the persons who run bills so high that the storekeeper dares not trust them longer unless they begin to pay cash?

Those persons who have been favored for months, when required to pay cash, will go to other dealers and pay them the cash instead of giving the storekeeper who favored them the benefit of cash.

Pretty small, these folks who when obliged to pay cash won't give the benefit to their family marketman who has carried them on credit for so long.
